GREEKS AND BRITISH PREPARE FOR TITANIC BATTLE IN NORTH GREECE

Berlin Reports Taking 100,000 Prisoners in Balkans

Air Assaults on British Next in German Plans To Defeat the Allies

Number of Prisoners Steadily Increasing, Statement Says; Admit Loss of 19 Planes

BERLIN, April 10 (AP) — The Germans announced today their lightning Balkan campaign thus far has netted 100,000 prisoners—80,000 Greeks and 20,000 Serbs — and declared themselves ready now for air assaults on the British in Greece as a prelude to a clash at close quarters.

A military spokesman said the Greek prisoners were taken in Thrace, eastern neck of Greece isolated from the main Hellenes forces by the swift Nazi drive to the Aegean port of Salonika.

"The final number will be much greater," he added, "since the count is not yet finished."

Likewise the number of Serb prisoners was declared to be "steadily increasing," with six generals constituting an entire division staff among those previously taken in South Serbia.

May "Soften up" British

Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering's air force apparently will take over the task of "softening up" the British expeditionary forces in Greece before Nazi ground troops tackle them.

"It is self-evident," said the commentary Dienst Aus Duetschland, which has close foreign office connections, "that the rail line on the east coast of Greece will be one of the principal objectives of German bombers.

"This single-track line leads north from Piraeus, the port of Athens, to the area where British and Greek troops are concentrated. In the German view a few well placed bombs would paralyze this lifeline.

The Dienst indicated similar strategy would be employed against Yugoslavia. German troops are advancing westward through that country while German and Italian armies are on the northern boundary.

Aerial arms of these forces, the commentary asserted, "will be in a position to disturb Serbian food imports through the (Adriatic) harbors of Dubrovnik and Split."

German pilots, informed quarters said, swooped down to within a few feet of the heads of embattled Serbs yesterday to dislodge them from almost impregnable heights.

Nazis Lose 10 Planes

The high command acknowledged the loss of nineteen German planes, but said these losses were more than offsett by the destruction of thirty-six Allied planes, including twenty-nine British and seven Yugoslav.

German war correspondents, who are part of the fighting forces, paid tribute to the valor of the Greeks and Yugoslavs.

They disclosed that, because of the rugged country, it was impossible to bring heavy Panzer units into action and that, therefore, there was much bitter hand-to-hand fighting.

Roosevelt Seeks Authority To Use Foreign Shipping

President Wants To Commandeer Those Now in U. S. Ports

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—Lest a "growing shortage of shipping facilities" defeat the armament program, President Roosevelt today asked Congress for authority to commandeer any foreign-owned vessel lying idle in American waters.

"We should have authority," he said, in a special message, "to take over any such vessel as our needs may require, subject, of course, to the payment of just compensation."

That Congress would comply with the president's request, none doubted. The message and a proposed draft of the legislation which accompanied it, were in the Senate to the Commerce committee. The House is in recess until after Easter.

The scope of the proposal nevertheless caused some surprise. Previous discussions of the subject had to do with the thirty-nine Danish, two German and twenty-eight Italian vessels which were seized on March 30. Under the language of the president's message it was patent that the legislation requested was not to be limited to these.

Danish Minister Agrees

Earlier in the week Mr. Roosevelt told reporters that the Danish minister here had acquiesced in the plan to commandeer the Danish vessels. (In Nazi-occupied Copenhagen it was said today, however, that the minister had been instructed to tell the United States the Danish government would not consent to leasing or selling the ships.)

It was believed the Danish ves-

U. S. Gets Rights For Naval Bases Along Greenland

Move Pushes Line of Defenses to Middle of the Atlantic

By J. C. STARK

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—The United States pushed its line of air and naval defenses to the middle of the North Atlantic and the very limits of the German sea blockade zone today by acquiring rights for bases and other military fortifications in Greenland.

Under an agreement signed with the Danish minister in Waington Henrik De Kauffmann, the United State assumed responsibility for "assisting" the Danish colony in "the maintenance of its present status" as a part of the defense of the western hemisphere.

The minister acted "on behalf" of the king of Denmark and with the approval of the local governors of Greenland but it was indicated that the government in German-occupied Denmark itself had no advance knowledeg of the agreement.

Greenland to Stay Danish

President Roosevelt, in announcing the inclusion of Greenland "in our system of cooperative hemispheric defense," said that the government of Denmark under present circumstances "cannot, of course, act in respect of its territory in the Western Hemisphere, but we propose to make sure that when the German invasion of Denmark has ended, Greenland will remain a Danish colony."

"Meanwhile," he said, "we earnestly hope for the quick liberation of Denmark from her present invaders."

Almost simultaneously, the president sent a message to Congress asking authority to take full possession of any foreign vessels idle in American ports, including the thirty-nine Danish ships already in "protective custody."

Previously, the president had said that the Danish minister here acquiesced in this action.

Danish Capital Protests

As a forerunner of the violent reaction expected to come from both the Danish capital and Berlin on the Greenland agreement, the foreign office in Copenhagen said earlier today it had instructed the minister here to advise the American government that it would neither sell nor lease the Danish ships.

The Danish minister declined to

Turkey To Move Large Population Out of Istanbul

Possibility of War Looks Grave to Government Officials

ISTANBUL, Turkey, April 10 (AP) — A considerable portion of the 750,000 population of this storied city on the Golden Horn will be removed to the interior of Asiatic Turkey, the government announced today, thus indicating the gravity with which it regards the possibility of war.

Istanbul is on the European side of the Bosporus, about 100 miles from Bulgaria and 150 miles from Eastern Greece, both under German occupation.

Free transportation by train and boat will be provided by the government, which stated:

"It is found advisable that persons of the following categories living in Istanbul should be evacuated: orphans, aged persons receiving civil or military pensions and who are not engaged in defense industry, and persons without occupation."

Applications for transportation must be made by April 15.

Only today the Rome radio quoted "well-infromed sources" as saying that Franz von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey, had renewed assurances that "Germany has no intention of attacking Turkey."

Separate Croat State Organized, Germans Declare

Dr. Macek Reported Behind New Government of Old Croatia

BERN, Switzerland, April 10—German motor troops rolled tonight into Zagreb, the capital of old Croatia, and German news agency dispatches said the patchwork kingdom of Yugoslavia had been ripped asunder by the formation of a separate Croat state.

The Croats, long a large and restless element of the kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, were declared to have established their own nation under Dr. Ante Pavelic and an extremist named Kvaternik, both once sentenced to death for complicity in the assassination of King Alexander in 1934.

Sensational About Face

Dr. Vladimir Macek, mild, bespectacled old Croat peasant leader who only last week accepted vice-premiership of the Yugoslav government, was portrayed as one of the prime movers of the new Zagreb government. This is a sensational about face, if true, for Macek long has been known as an enemy of Pavelic and an outspoken critic of the many assassinations and terroristic plots laid to Pavelic in his campaign against Yugoslav unity.

It was Macek, however, to whom the German news agency Internationales Nachrichten Buro attributed announcement of the new Croat state in a radio address from Zagreb.

The German high command announced merely that Zagreb was occupied and that the Croat population greeted the Nazi troops joyously. This conformed with Macek's asserted advice to the public just before the occupation to hang German and Croat flags on their homes.

(Authoritative circles in London immediately called the news "the same old German game of setting up a supposedly independent state in territory their armies are attempting to subjugate.")

Macek To Head Government

According to the DNB story, Macek announced that Pavelic would head the government, that he himself would participate, and that "at this very moment" a Croat politician named Kvaternik had been appointed vice-premier and was "taking the administration in hand."

(DNB, official German news agency, carried in Berlin a slightly different account from Bratislava, Slovakia, to the effect that the Zagreb radio announced "General Sladko Kvaternik," as chief of state had proclaimed Croatia an independent nation.)

This apparently is the same mysterious individual, known variously as Dr. Kvaternik and Egon Kramer, who with Pavelic was sentenced to death in absentia by French courts for the Marseille killing of King Alexander, Yugoslavia's present King Peter II is Alexander's oldest son.

Both Pavelic and Kvaternik found sanctuary in Italy, which refused extradition.

Pavelic Backed Hitler

Only three days ago Pavelic, still in Italy, telegraphed Premier Mussolini a pledge of support.

Macek, chief of 3,500,000 Croats, has been with the fugitive Yugoslav government of King Peter and Premier General Dusan Simvic at an undisclosed place in central Yugo-

Ford Employes Agree to Terms To Settle Strike

Van Wagoner's Proposals Also Accepted by Company, but with Changes

DETROIT, April 10. (AP)—A mass meeting of United Automobile Workers (CIO), acting on proposals for settlement of the strike at the Ford Motor Company, tonight approved Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner's plan and authorized union negotiators to act on modifications sought by the company.

Union negotiators were empowered by the rank and file to continue conferences and eventual settlement of the strike, now in its ninth day, remained uncertain as to time.

An estimated 16,000 unionists, crowding the state fair grounds coliseum, approved by acclamation a motion put to them by Michael F. Widman Jr., chairman of the UAW-CIO Ford organizing drive, in these words:

"We accept the proposal of our governor, then refer the matter the Ford Motor Company raised tonight—just a bugaboo—to your negotiating committee."

Three Point Offer

Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner had set forth a three-point proposal for ending the strike, and the company asked for certain modifications.

Widman told the mass meeting that he and fellow union negotietors had accepted Governor Van Wagoner's proposal "subject to your ratification."

"They (the Ford company) accepted but tied a little string to it," Widman said. "I'm not worried about the string. I think we'll find the knife to cut it pretty soon."

He then added:

Family of Nine Sets Up Housekeeping In Relief Office

LOS ANGELES, April 10. (AP)—Guillermo Sierra, 35, his wife and seven children set up housekeeping today in the offices of the state relief administration. They said they would remain until they were given money for rent.

Result of Fighting on Peninsula Seems Likely To Decide Balkans' Fate

War in Greece Enters New Phase Following Defeat of Defenders on Bulgarian Border; Trapped Greek Forces Cut Way to Freedom and Take Up New Positions

ATHENS, April 11 (AP) (Friday) — Greek soldiers and their British allies grimly dug in on a solid mountain barrier in northern Greece today in preparation for a titantic battle to hold the Greek peninsula against German troops who were reported rapidly cleaning up western Thrace and the Salonika region.

Greek officials declared the overwhelming superiority of the German men and weapons outweighed the Greeks in the border regions but that they resisted to the last bullet.

The Greeks reported fighting between the Nazis and isolated Greek forces was confined to the Bulgarian border and a spattering of German air raids on the Athens port of Piraeus and Kozane.

New Phase of War

Official sources here declared the war in Greece definitely had entered a new phase.

In the first stage they declared, the geographical features of the border regions favored the German mechanized invaders.

Now they added, the defenders have a mountain barrier on which to base themselves — and it is there that the forces are making ready for the battle for the Greek peninsula.

Greeks Holding Out

The Greeks still holding out on the Bulgarian frontier are "giving a unique example of heroism and abnegration," said Athens radio, but elsewhere contact with the Germans —which was broken off before the capture of Salonika on Wednesday —has not been reestablished.

(A National Broadcasting Company representative in London quoted the Greek radio as saying the trapped Greek forces in the east had cut their way through the German line to freedom and taken up new positions west of Salonika.)

German planes dropped magnetic mines in Piraeus harbor again on Thursday, the Greek home security ministry announced, and several of them exploded on land, causing casualties and damage. One fell near an insane asylum, causing some casualties there.

Parts of destroyed German aircraft were found in one district of the town.

Planes Kill Five

Planes which bombed Kozane forty miles south of the Yugoslav border and seventy miles southeast of Salonika, caused only five deaths, the Greeks said.

On the Albanian front with the Italians, the Greek command said there was patrol and artillery activity. "Farther east there is nothing of importance to report," the communique said.

The Greeks declared they were determined to smash Hitler's invaders with British help "at the right time and in the right place."

All British residents of Salonika were reported safely removed before that city's capitulation.

A German military spokesman said in Berlin that more than 80,000 Greeks had been captured in Thrace and that the "final count will be much greater."

Greek military men indicated that the Germans would be challenged in the lofty northern mountains where British and Greek forces have established their main lines following the Nazi drive to the Aegean port of Salonika, cutting the country in two.

Predict Mountain Victory

"The battle for Greek independence, first won on Mount Pindus," they asserted, "will be repeated again on Greek mountains where in past centuries invaders have been stopped."

It was in these same mountains that stalwart Greek warriors last November hurled Benito Mussolini's Fascist invaders back into Albania.

RAF bombers and fighters, despite bad weather, kept up wave assaults on the Germans in the Kilkis and Polycastron areas north of Salonika and reported inflicting heavy casualties on Nazi troop-laden transports.

Before pulling out of Salonika, the Greeks said they applied the torch to the city, destroying oil tanks and everything else that would be of value to the Nazis.

Destroy Oil Stores

Among the oil facilities destroyed were some $1,500,000 worth of installations belonging to the Steaua-Romana company, in which Standard Oil of New Jersey had an interest.

All but two members of the American colony at Salonika got out ahead of the Germans with the Army Throws Cloak of Secrecy Over Military Moves Offshore

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—The army threw a cloak of secrecy over all military activity in offshore bases and possessions today as American protection for Greenland was announced.

Undersecretary of war Robert P. Patterson disclosed a new official regulation classing as "confidential" all information regarding the strength of troops sent to American overseas points, the identity of specific units, or information which in any way might reveal the strength and character of the garrisons.

The war department decided, officials explained, that the information "would be detrimental to national defense, and of definite interest to foreign intelligence services," while possessing little value to the American public.

No Actual Censorship

The new regulation involves, however, no actual censorship of communications from Hawaii, the Philippines, the Canal Zone or other strategically important overseas points, such as is familiar in wartime. It was explained as "censorship at the source," meaning that the army will not give out the information.

The move was the army's second of the kind recently. Beginning last week, announcements of contracts for work outside the continental United States omitted specific identification of the places involved.

Only about five per cent of all military information is subject to a ban on disclosure, officials said. This falls under three classifications.

Vital to Defense

Secret information is that classed as vital to the national defense such as war plans and details of such devices as bomb sights.

Confidential information is that whose publication would be prejudicial to the best interests and prestige of the United States, but would not endanger national security.

Restricted information is that ordered kept within the military service until its disclosure is considered no longer premature, such as sites for camps and munitions plants.

German Raiders Bomb London in Reprisal for Raids on Berlin

LONDON, April 11 — (Friday) — (AP)—German raiders attacking soon after the Nazi press published threats to "avenge a hundred-fold" the destructive raid by the British on Berlin, dropped bombs on London for the second time in the last twenty days and fanned out over other sections of England last night and early today.

London was under an alarm for about five hours before the all clear was sounded near dawn.

RAF night fighters and heavy defense guns challenged the Nazis wherever they appeared and unofficial sources expressed belief the toll of raiders might be high again. Twenty-nine German planes have been reported shot down since Tuesday night.

Fire wardens in one Midland town watched a night battle between a fighter and a raider, their tracer bullets criss-crossing the moonlit sky.

An intense attack developed on a West Midlands town. The police station, police court and post office were damaged and people were believed trapped by hits on two public shelters.

Great fires sprang up in the heart of Berlin as British bombers smashed at the German capital last night for the first time since March 23, the air ministry news service reported today.

"Tremendous clouds of smoke surged into the air" at the height of the three-hour attack, the service's elaboration of an earlier communique said. Bombs were seen to burst near one of the main railway stations of Berlin and others in a large storage yard with the number of fires steadily increasing.

Berlin Subjected to Worst Attack Of War; Nazi Opera House Wrecked

BERLIN, April 10. (AP)—British pilots swept down upon Berlin last night while the Germans were celebrating their Balkan successes, strewing bombs along Under Den Linden, destroying the German state opera house and setting off a damaging blaze in the attic of the Prussian state library.

Also damaged were Bellevue castle, where Adolf Hitler houses distinguished guests on state visits, and the modern art gallery which formerly was the crown prince's residence.

Nazis Threaten Reprisals

The press promised furious reprisals. The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung observed that the opera house "was known to be especially close to the heart of the Reichsmarshal and luftwafe commander-in-chief Hermann Wilhelm Goering and, like the last attack on Kiel, it will be avenged a hundred-fold."

The German high command itself reported that the British had caused "somewhat extensive damage, primarily in the residential sections as well as in the center of the city, on public buildings of historic and educational value such as churches and museums."

"The losses in dead and wounded among the civilian population," it added, "were very low in comparison to the number of bombs dropped."

Other Centers Raided

Emden, Bremen and other war centers also were raided, but the Germans claimed that it was at a heavy British cost. Seventeen British planes were declared shot down overnight, seven on Tuesday night and a grand total of forty-three since April 8 in all battle areas, including North Africa.

Too, the German aerial offensive of last night was said by the high command to have "dealt hard blows to the British armament centers of New Castle.

The ports of Ipswich and Southampton also were bombed, it was added, and during yesterday German planes sank nine British ships aggregating 49,000 tons, damaging five other commercial ships and a British destroyer.

British Strategy In North Africa Gets Hard Blow

Capture of Three Generals and 2,000 Troops Admitted

LONDON, April 10 (AP) — The British war office acknowledged today a severe blow to its strategy in North Africa in the probable loss of three key generals and 2,000 troops believed to have been captured by German-Italian columns racing across the sands of Eastern Libya.

"We are without news of three senior officers, Lieut. Gen. P. Neame, VC., Lieut. Gen. Sir Richard Nugent O'Conor, and Major Gen. M. D. Gambier-Parry," said a war office communique. (The Germans said six generals and two colonels were among 2,000 prisoners at El Mechili, fifty miles southwest of Derna.)

O'Connor was the right hand man of General Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander in chief of the near east, and was regarded as one of the best tacticians in the British army.

Two Generals Honored

He and Lieut. Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson were praised by Prime Minister Churchill last February for carrying out Wavell's offensive which shoved the Italians out of Egypt and back beyond Bengasi. Each was made a Knight Commander of the Bath.

Gambier-Parry, one of the foremost tank and tank-gunnery specialists of the British army, also was a valuable man in carrying out whatever strategy is planned to stop the Axis offensive, which both Berlin and Rome now say has reached beyond Derna, 160 miles from the Egyptian frontier.

Gambier-Parry was familiar with problems of the Balkan campaign. He was a member of a British military mission which visited Greece when she was drawn into the war with Italy last fall.

Neame formerly was a commanding officer in Palestine and before the fall of France was Viscount Gort's deputy chief of staff in Flanders.

Germans Far From Base

The British, however, pointed out that the Germans and Italians in their rebound were already 750 miles from their base at Tripoli, and not in a position to ship supplies to way stations along the coast, as did the British in their westward offensive last winter.

Dispatches today reported that sandstorms in North Africa made aerial operations difficult. However, casualties were declared to have been inflicted on Axis columns caught in the open.

Prisoners taken at Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, were said to have totaled 5,000, while an additional 2,350 men were captured yesterday.

sels might be turned over to the British to carry supplies. Mr. Roosevelt has indicated the United States could not transfer the German and Italian ships to Britain, inasmuch as the United States is not at war, but it was believed that there vessels might take over tasks now performed by American vessels, thus relieving the latter for possible transfer to the British.

Seizure Held Legal

In his message today Mr. Roosevelt noted that a large number of foreign vessels had been tied up in American ports for some time and had not seen fit to repart because of war conditions. Existing law, he said, authorized the United States to take over American-owned ships in time of emergency and upon payment of compensation, but no such provision exists concerning foreign craft.

"In view of the growing shortage of available tonnage suited to our national needs," he continued, "I am satisfied, after consultation with the heads of the interested departments and agencies of the government, that we should have statutory authority to take over any such vessels as our needs may require, subject of course, to the payment of just compensation.

"It is obvious that our ultimate defense will be rendered futile if the growing shortage of shipping facilities is no arrested. It is also obvious that inability to remove accumulating materials from our ports can only result in stoppage of production with attendant unemployment and suspension of production contracts.

Necessary For Defense

"It is therefore essential, both to our defense plans and to our domestic economy, that we shall not permit the continuance of the immobilization in our harbors of shipping facilities."

The Senate commerce committee planned to begin work on the legislation Monday. From Senator George (D-Ga), chairman of the Foreign Relations committee, came a statement that the proposal fitted into the general theory of the British aid program. He could see no objection to it, he said.

Senator Connally (D-Texas) expressed the opinion that the plan was sound and predicted a substantial majority for it in the Senate.

Combat Range at Fort Meade Soon To See Service

"Commence Firing" Order Will Be Given within a Few Days

FORT GEORGE G. MEADE, April 10 (AP)—Colonel Gilbert M. Allen, post commander, announced today that the "commence firing" order will be given within a few days at Fort Meade's new 6,100-acre combat range and warned civilians to keep out of the area during firing periods.

The staccato rattle of machine guns, volleys of infantry fire and bursts of 75's will echo over the range from early morning until night under the present schedule. Danger hours for civilians will be from 7:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. Night firing may be inaugurated later.

Colonel Allen said the army is taking extraordinary precautions to prevent injury to civilians. He warned all persons to observe warning signs and gates, and to obey instructions of range guards.

He especially emphasized the danger of "duds"—unexploded shells—and warned all persons against picking them up for souvenirs or making an effort to detonate them.

Boundaries Announced

The new range, on which all types of infantry weapons and the seventy-five field artillery guns will be fired, is bounded by the Fort Meade-Laurel road on the northwest, the road leading south from the Laurel race track, the Patuxent river on the south, the Pennsylvania railroad on the east to Odenton, and Rock avenue in the north.

The area, acquired during the last six months, contains 120 tracts of land, on which 120 families were living. All but ten families already have moved from the land and the last of those still in the danger zone are expected to leave immediately, army authorities said.

The new range consists of six separate firing areas, accommodating rifles, .30 and .50 caliber machine-guns, 37 mm anti-tank guns, trench mortars, anti-aircraft weapons and 75 mm field guns.

In the latter case, an attachment for firing 37 mm shells will be used because the range is not suited for the regular 75's.

Both the regular army combat organizations stationed at the post and those of the Twenty-ninth division will use the firing range.

Warning Signs Posted

Warning signs—"danger, range firing"—have been posted at all trails running into the range.

A guard will be on duty atop a 50-foot observation tower, watching the danger zone closely at all times. Telephonic communication to firing points will be maintained.

Daily bulletins to all organizations on the post will caution soldiers against entering the range.

The vacating of the area has been accomplished with minimum delay and friction, army authorities said.

"In fact," Colonel Allen stated, "we have been extremely gratified by the fine spirit of those who have bowed patriotically to the compelling necessities of national defense and given up their homes."

Preparedness Urged By Rep. Sumners

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—Rep. Sumners (D-Tex) said tonight that the United States was moving rapidly "toward actual fighting contact with this World war unprepared either to win or defend ourselves."

The great need of the moment, he added in an address prepared for broadcast over NBC, was for everyone to realize the urgency of the times and recognize that "we are all in the same boat."

"We face the same dangers—laborers and capitalists, the people in the factory and the people in the office, the people in the fields—everywhere," he continued.

"We have been making noises like an eagle but we ought to be doubly certain that we are not strutting our stuff like a fat chicken before a hungry a hawk as ever swooped to the kill."

James Roosevelt To Marry Nurse Early Next Week

Date Depends upon Ability of His Mother To Attend Ceremony

LOS ANGELES, April 10 (AP) — James Roosevelt and Miss Romelle Schneider, his nurse in a Rochester, Minn., hospital in 1938, applied for a marriage license today.

The president's oldest son said they would be married in a civil ceremony early next week, possibly Tuesday. The date depends on his mother's ability to attend.

In New York, Mrs. Roosevelt said the wedding probably would be Monday.

"I shall be surprised if it is Tuesday," she added.

Roosevelt said it had not been decided who would officiate. The ceremony will be performed either at the home of Miss Schneider's mother, Mrs. Agnes Schneider, or at that of a friend.

Asked if he had considered a White House wedding, he said he preferred to follow the custom of having it at the bride's home.

There will be no honeymoon, Roosevelt explained, because he has standby orders from the marine corps, in which he is a reserve captain on active duty at San Diego.

He and his bride will make their home in San Diego.

In view of Miss Schneider's membership in the Roman Catholic church, there were reports the ceremony would be performed by a priest, and that Jimmy had been receiving instructions in the doctrines of that church.

"Jimmy is not a Catholic and is not becoming a Catholic," his mother told reporters in New York.

Roosevelt first met Miss Schneider in the Rochester hospital, where he went for a stomach operation. He said today they had been engaged "for a long time."

She accompanied him to California where he came to recuperate. She has remained near him. Her sister, Phyllis, has been Roosevelt's secretary since he entered the motion picture business.

They were joined here by their mother, for whom Roosevelt bought a home in Beverly Hills.

It will be Miss Schneider's first marriage and Roosevelt's second. He was divorced from Betsey Cushing Roosevelt a year ago. She was given the custody of their two daughters.

Miss Schneider is 25, Roosevelt 33.

Third of Income Tax Collected as Deadline Nears

ANNAPOLIS, April 10 (AP)—State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes announced today his office already had collected more than one-third of the estimated $6,500,000 yield of the state income tax. The tax deadline falls next Tuesday.

As of today, Tawes said 60,144 taxable returns had been filed, bringing in $2,581,820. A breakdown of these figures has not yet been completed.

However, the state comptroller said as of Monday, 52,099 resident individuals, 1,499 corporations and other persons had filed returns yielding $2,320,835.

At that time corporations paid in $321,943; resident individuals $1,952,359; 301 non-resident individuals $10,625; 200 fiduciaries $25,548; 77 employers' tax withheld at source returns $10,124 and 21 amended returns $324.

Tawes said he felt sure the new income tax—reduced by the general assembly at Governor O'Conor's request—would yield $6,500,000.

The legislature cut the levy on investment income from six to five per cent and the tax on earned income from 2 1-2 to two per cent. It made the new rates retroactive so as to apply to 1940 incomes and authorized payments in quarterly installments.

Robert A. Lovett Named to Post in "Little Cabinet"

Will Be Assistant Secretary of War for Air; 49 Generals Elevated

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—The army's expansion resulted today in revival of the long vacant post of assistant secretary of war for air and temporary promotion of forty-nine generals.

Robert A. Lovett, New York financier and World war navy flier who for months has advised Secretary Stims on aviation matters, to the "little cabinet" post last filled eight years ago.

At the same time, John J. McCloy, also a New Yorker and war veteran, was nominated to be assistant secretary of war. This post has been vacant since Robert P. Patterson was advanced to undersecretary late last year.

May Name Navy Assistants

Revival of the naval assistant secretaryship for air likewise has been under consideration.

Sent to the Senate at the same time were the names of ten brigadier generals nominated to temporary promotion to major general, and thirty-nine colonels to be brigadier generals. Officials said the promotions were mostly to fill existing vacancies.

The prospective new major generals included:

Brigadier General George V. Strong, commander of the Seventh Corps area, Omaha, Neb., recently chief of the general staff's war plans division.

Some of Promotions

The list of brigadier nominations included Colonel Thomas J. J. Christian, stationed at Camp Roberts, Calif., a grandson of Confederate general "Stonewall" Jackson. He will hold the same rank as U. S. Grant III, grandson of the Civil war union leader, and his 1933-34 classmate at the Army War college.

Others named included Colonel Charles P. George, Fort Sill, Okla., a son-in-law of former vice-president Charles Curtis; Colonel Joseph T. McNarney, of the air corps, a member of the joint United States-Canadian Defense Commission, and Colonel Charles Hines, executive of the Army-Navy Munitions Board, who is a brother of Brigadier General Frank Hines, federal veterans administration.

U. S. Gets Rights

say what he would do about these instructions but Danish sources said that, if he did anything at all, he would merely pass them along to the state department as a formality.

The Greenland agreement was patterned after, but in some ways was even more far-reaching, than those granting the United States air and naval bases in eight British possessions in the Western Hemisphere.

Many Rights for U. S.

It gave this country the right to build landing fields, seaplane facilities, radio and meteorological installations, harbors and anchorages, roads, communications services, fortifications, and and generally the right to do any and all things necessary to insure the efficient operation, maintenance and protection of such defense facilities as may be established."

The potential dangers of a clash between the newly installed American defense forces and German sea or air raiders along the eastern limits of the Western Hemisphere were conceded in responsible quarters here.

Emphasis was placed in the agreement, however, on the "grave danger that European territorial possessions in America may be converted into strategic centers of aggression against nations of the American content."

German Area Extended

German recently extended its area of counter-blockade operations against Great Britain to the very shores of Greenland, so that the blockade area now includes Iceland.

Iceland, an independent kingdom with the same king as Denmark, is separated from Greenland by a narrow strip of water which also, in the opinion of the American government, marks the border line of the Western Hemisphere. British troops occupied Iceland shortly after the German invasion of Denmark.

With the United States acquiring full authority over the defense area which it leases, it was considered possible that Greenland might become an important base for delivery of airplanes and other war supplies to Great Britain.

Trout Stream for Children To Open Tuesday Morning

Youngsters under 14 Will Not Even Have To Take Out License

BALTIMORE, April 10 (AP)—Maryland's junior Isaak Waltons will have an opportunity to try their skill on their own stream, starting next Tuesday.

That's the day the section of valley run restricted to children under fourteen—who are not required to have licenses—will be opened. Approximately 500 trout were planted in the stream today by employes of the state game and inland fish commission in preparation for the opening.

The project, which Chief Commission Clerk Frank Bentz called the first of its kind in the county, starts at Park Heights avenue and extends upwards on the stream for about three-fourths of a mile to the Lee property just east of Chattolanee.

Fishing will be permitted on the stream from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. daily between April 15 and June 30. There will be a creek limit of five fish per day.

Unlike the adult project opened on the same stream this year, the children's area has not restrictions on the type of lure which may be used, but Bentz said that several expert instructors will be on hand the first few days to encourage the young anglers to use flies and other artificial lures.

About 200 of the trout planted in the stream today were brooks, which ordinarily are caught more easily than browns or rainbows. The brooks range in length from about eight to nine inches; the rainbows and browns a little larger.

Ford Employes

picket lines. The strike isn't over yet."

R. J. Thomas, president of the union, told the meeting that the company requests were "not counter proposals but additional proposals." He said that he and other union negotietors would reach a decision on the modified peace plan "perhaps tonight or tomorrow morning."

Thomas, Widman and other union leaders left the mass meeting to resume conferences at mediation headquarters in downtown Detroit.

During the day union officials had accepted Van Wagoner's plan for settlement of the strike in the big Rouge plant "without further delay" to aid national defense, but the company asked modifications.

Cannot Reopen at Once

Harry H. Bennett, Ford personnel director, announced late in the afternoon that the company was prepared to reopen its huge Rouge plant on the governor's terms, except that "it is impossible to return all employes to their jobs at once."

The company also insisted that certain complaints filed with the National Labor Relations Board here by the union and other NLRB hearings affecting the Rouge plant "be deferred and held in abeyance" until after an election, ordered recently by the NLRB to be held within forty-five days.

Bennett's statement said the company was "not only willing but anxious to expedite the holding of an election" and added:

"The company's sole interest in that regard is to make sure that a fair and honest election is held—an election that will represent the true wishes of the majority of its employes."

Payrolls Available

Bennett promised that the company would make its payrolls available to NLRB officials at that time "in the plant."

Later I. A. Capizzi, chief Ford counsel, said that production would resume Monday since it will require "at least a day" for preliminaries and the plant is normally closed Saturday and Sunday.

The original strike demands of the UAW-CIO included a ten-cent hourly wage increase, a contractual agreement, and substitution of uniformed protection men for the Ford service department.

The company has $155,000,000 in defense orders for airplane engines, bomber assemblies and small trucks for the army. It was reported that the only one in actual production at the huge Rouge plant when the strike began nine days ago was an order for 1,500 small army trucks.

No Discrimination

The governor's plan, which had the support of Federal Conciliator James F. Dewey, called for all employes to return to their jobs without discrimination, the reestablishment of grievance procedure used before the strike, and cooperation of both sides in holding an election ordered by the National Labor Relations Board.

The union acceptance, signed by R. J. Thomas, union president; Allan S. Haywood, CIO national organization director, and Michael F. Widman, Jr., director of the UAW-Ford Organizing committee, said the union believed the governor's proposal was a "constructive basis for termination of the strike."

"Our decision has been influenced also by the desire of the CIO, the UAW-CIO and the Ford workers to expedite our national defense program," the latter said.

Settlement of the strike at the Rouge plant, world's largest industrial unit, would return 85,000 workers to their jobs there and provide work for a total of 200,000 when Ford branch factories and supplying concerns resume operations.

CORFU, AFTER AXIS BOMBING

The narrow streets of Corfu, the age-old city of Greece, are littered with wreckage after a recent Italian aerial attack. The nearby cathedral was unharmed.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The line on which British-Greek Allies still hope to halt the German Balkan blitzkrieg is becoming more apparent. It is roughly defined in press dispatches as forming an enormous inverted "V" from the western shores of the gulf of Salonika on the Aegean coast of Greece, to Chimara in Albania, on the Adriatic.

That is too vast a defense line to indicate with any certainty where the next and perhaps crucial German blow will fall. It is virtually certain, however, that German hopes of a quick and decisive victory in the Balkans call for an attack on the British-held segment of the line, wherever it actually runs. Defeat of the British is essential to the Germans to confirm victories already won against Greeks or Yugoslavians.

British Hold Right Flank

The British probably hold the right flank of whatever line is being set up. Thus they would retain the closest possible contact with the sea and the navy and with their bases of debarkation and supply in Greece, farther south.

It is somewhat surprising to find that the indicated British-Greek defense line cuts considerably south and west of the coastal plains through which the Vardar river runs. The lower Vardar had appeared to offer a formidable obstruction to a German attack. Even Greek railroads and highways shun it and it would offer a wide obstacle to German mechanized attack.

The west bank of the Vardar, even above the coastal plains at its outflow, is defensible ground. The river skirts bold heights on the west for a considerable distance, while on the east, the direction from which a German attack on that sector must come presumably, it is flanked by a low-lying country. British or Allied guns from those heights would have dominated approaches from the east.

Other Considerations Seen

If press cables accurately describe the general outline of the positions on which the British-Greek Allies are preparing to make their fight, however, other consideration controlled its mapping. The purported Chimara - Phlorina - Olympus line must be the product of stern necessity. Perhaps the front had to be shortened in view of the limited numbers of Greek and British troops available to hold it.

Just where Yugoslavian forces south of the attempted German-Italian juncture near the Yugoslavian-Albanian border may be expected to help strengthen the Greek-British front is not clear. Presumably they must fall back southward out of their own country into Greece to fill in the short line intended to bar the Germans from the mountainous terrain between the head of the Gulf of Salonika and the important lake region on the Albanian-Yugoslavian border. If Germans and Italians united effectively north of those lakes, it might mean a combined attack on the Greek line across southern Albania.

No Other Possibility

That the British-Greek stand in northeastern Greece had to be made west of the Vardar once the Germans had cracked the Struma gateway from Bulgaria and slashed down from Southern Yugoslavia to seize Salonika was obvious.

Generally speaking, the line lies in precipitous country, a land of almost roadless valleys and gorges. It will be difficult for mechanized forces to operate there. Moreover, the line has no discernible flanks exposed to blitzkrieg attack.

Coal Conference Fails To Agree

Northern and Southern Operators Unable To Get Together

NEW YORK, April 10 (AP) — Soft coal miners and operators still struggled near midnight tonight to reach agreement on a contract and return to work 400,000 miners who have been idle ten days.

The negotiators, who had met for five hours earlier in the day—their longest session since negotiations began March 14 — went into conference again at 9 o'clock with Dr. John R. Steelman, chief federal conciliator.

They were understood to be studying official statistics relating to the cost of production in various areas.

Although bituminous operators representing sixty-eight percent of the national production have indicated willingness to meet demands of the United Mine Workers of America (CIO) for a $1 a day wage increase and other concessions, Steelman said he wanted negotiations to continue in order to reach industry-wide accord.

A dispute between the northern and southern groups of the Appalachian area which sets the wage and hour standards for the entire industry still blocked full agreement, the south opposing elimination of a differential under which it pays forty cents a day less per man than the north.

Large Increases In Compensation Under State Bill

Workmen To Get Up to 60 Per Cent More, Moylan Points Out

BALTIMORE, April 10. (AP)—Increases ranging up to sixty per cent in the amount of compensation to be paid workers in several types of the more serious injuries are provided in legislation passed by the legislature, it was disclosed today.

Charles E. Moylan, state industrial accident commission chairman, characterized the amendments to the compensation law as a substantial gain for laborers. The amending bill is currently awaiting approval by the governor.

"The legislation in question," Moylan said, "was proposed to the Legislative Council by me and had the backing of the state administration and is, therefore, practically certain to be signed by governor O'Conor."

In addition to the provision for increased benefits, Moylan said the assembly also approved these changes in the existing compensation set-up:

Four Changes Made

1. Providing that sunstroke and frostbite be compensable injuries;

2. Providing that payments for temporary total disability and permanent partial disability shall not exceed the allowance payment for total permanent disability;

3. Requiring that all fees of lawyers representing injured workmen be approved by the commission;

4. Divorcing the state accident fund from the state industrial accident commission.

The increase in benefits to injured workmen—provided for in house bill No. 53—is effected by a lengthening of the time over which such payments shall be made.

Under the present law, for example, a workman who loses an eye from an injury sufered on his job receives two-thirds of his average weekly wage—with an $18 maximum and an $8 minimum—for a period of 100 weeks.

Under the law as amended, the compensation period is increased to 160 weeks, a gain of sixty per cent.

Other increases provided for age: for the loss of a leg the period is lengthened from 175 to 212 weeks; loss of an arm, from 200 weeks to 212 weeks; loss of a hand, from 150 weeks to 166 weeks.

The amendment making sunstroke and frostbite compensable injuries clarifies what always has been a controversial point in the law, Moyland said.

"At present, some instances of frostbite and sunstroke are compensable and some are not, depending upon the commission's and the court's construction of the working conditions and facts of the injury," he added.

An anomalous possibility in the present law—that of having a workman who is partially disabled receive more benefits than one who is permanently totally disabled — is also removed by the amendments, Moyland said.

The provision requiring the commission to approve all lawyers' fees in compensation cases, he continued, was first recommended and proposed by the legislative committee of the Baltimore City Bar Association.

Divorcement of the state accident fund and the commission would be effective on June 1, Moylan said. The accident fund would then be managed and controlled by a board of five directors or commissioners to be appointed by the governor.

Hints on Making Child's Garden Paying Project

Experiences of Wisconsin Woman Are Cited by Psychologist

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

The other day I printed a contribution on a family garden, by Mrs. Elizabeth Hart Huffer, of Madison, Wisconsin. She also gave me some hints for one to embark on a garden project with children.

"Don't expect the children to fall in love with gardening if you don't thoroughly enjoy it yourself," she advises. "Although I am a garden enthusiast, my boys don't like it too well yet, but they do the work willingly for the sake of the reward.

"If you are a complete novice, don't bite off more than you can chew. Remember that after the seed is in the ground, your work has just begun. I had never raised garden vegetables untill recently, but I have a flower garden for years.

Vegetables Eatable

"I find a vegetable garden more satisfying than a flower garden, although I shall always want some flowers, of course. After all, you can eat the vegetables, and I found some varieties such as Crosby's Egyptian Beet (ealy variety), and Tendersweet Carrot to be superior in flavor to the ordinary market varieties. Old Dominion spinach didn't even look like the store variety. We had heaping bowls of Laxton peas in cream, and the Fordhook Potato Limas were food for the gods!

"If you have enough space, corn is the most satisfactory vegetable to raise money. By treating the seed (ask your county agent about this) it can be shown earlier and will not rot, and the early corn commands the price. The boys like to raise corn.

"This gardening project needs plenty of build-up. I started the propaganda the previous fall: how it was a real man's job, how farmers 'have it all over the city guys' when it comes to building strong bodies, how the boys (through fear of fauut of their own) who just play games aren't contributing to society in the way that boys do who can produce food for their families.

Patience Needed

"I asked several friends about experiences in gardening with boys. One mother said, 'I told Bobby every time he would sit down to rest I would rest, too.' I needn't add that her venture not not successful. Another who had been outstandingly successful in rearing seven boys said, 'The ten to twelve-year-old boy is living through the hunting stage of human development. He wants to fish and hunt. But if you can sufficiently motivate the project, maybe you can make an agriculturist out of him. Let we know how you come out.'

"There are many problems, even with a profitable garden. But our venture was so successful that the seven-year-old wants to finance the whole project himself next year. And we all agree that we want a larger garden."

In these days when it is not easy for parents to lead their children to do hard work and to learn the real value of money, expecially among the middle and upper income groups, it seems to be that the suggestion by Mrs. Huffer are excellent.

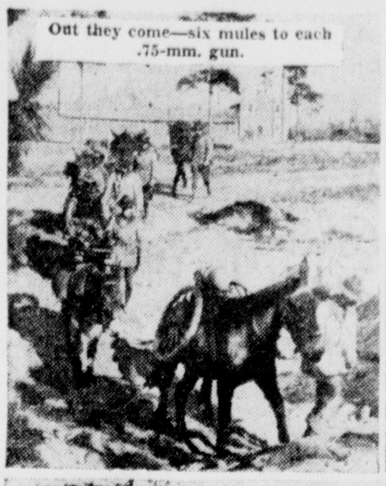
A. No; if you do you make it an emotional matter and defeat the purpose of the punishment.

THOSE (xxx!) MULES ARE STILL IN THE ARMY!



Out they come—six mules to each .75-mm. gun.

Feeding time? Oh, no. It's a fake haystack

This is the idea. When the enemy gets in range, out come mules and guns from the camouflaged hideout.

Maybe you think Uncle Sam has no more use in his modern army for those thick-skinned mules, whose comprehension of English increases in direct proportion to the hearty forcefulness of the commands. If you do, you're wrong! These pictures taken at Fort Bragg, N. C., show how the army is employing mules to pack .75-mm. field guns. Six mules are required to transport each gun, but the crew can assemble the piece in just a minute and a half when they reach the scene of action. They come in handy in terrain too difficult for motor vehicles to operate in easily.

One and a half minutes later—the guns are assembled and firing, the mules are back in the haystack, and the "enemy" is getting an unpleasant surprise.

School Children's Protests Bring Traffic Cop Back

WELCH, W. Va., April 10 (AP)—Cries of "we want Tommy" brought City Patrolman Tommy Gray back to the school crossing post he held for six years when Mayor B. F. Howard listened to the protests of school children.

Gray had been transferred to night duty, but several of the children said "it just didn't look right" to have another officer on Tommy's corner.

Yielding to a Great Drawing Power

FORESEEING His death on the cross, Jesus said, "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me."

Very slow indeed were men in understanding that prophecy. At first the death on the cross seemed total defeat. Even centuries later, when Christianity had taken form, its followers lost the true significance of it. They quarreled among themselves. Nations warred with each other over questions of religion.

Today, in America, Christian churches worship together in a spirit of splendid fellowship. Followers of the Crucified One are yielding obedience to the drawing power which Jesus said eventually would extend to "all men."

The Facts about the Bounty Repealer

MUCH CONFUSION appears to have been caused hereabout as the result of misinformation, or perhaps lack of information, about the repealer of the local law respecting bounties for destructive wild animals in Allegany county that was enacted at the recent session of the General Assembly.

The repealer is House Bill 803, which repeals Sections 28 and 29 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland passed by the Assembly in 1910. By the terms of that local law, any person killing a fox, a wild cat, a hawk or a hoot owl was entitled to receive as bounties from the Allegany county commissioners $2 for each wild cat, $1 for each fox and fifty cents for each hoot owl or hawk.

Now it appears that the repealer was enacted in the program of abolishing old-laws for the purpose of permitting a general law which gives the county commissioners of Allegany county not only this but even wider authority and discretion in the payment of such bounties.

The general law, which was passed back in 1906 and which continues on the statute books, provides "that the county commissioners may make all necessary rules and regulations for allowing and paying bounties for the killing of hawks, owls, crows, minks, foxes, wild cats and other and like destructive and harmful wild animals and birds."

The revisions and repealers of obsolete laws for the recent session of the General Assembly were in charge of Dr. Horace E. Flack, head of the Department of Legislative Reference at Annapolis, and the repealer of the local law was drafted by him after due study of the situation as heretofore set forth. Not only was he careful about this repealer, but he went to the pains of explaining in the preamble of the repealer just why it was being enacted.

"Whereas, in Article 25 of Section 2 of the Anoted Code [of general laws], the county commissioners of Allegany county have power to fix bounties for the killing of certain wild animals, therefore the old local law should be superseded," the preamble explains.

It will be seen that the general law, which comes back into effect in this county in place of the local law which has been repealed, takes in a wider scope respecting bounties than did the local law. It includes crows and minks, which the local law did not cover, and widens the list of wild animals and birds of a destructive nature for which bounties may be paid. And the county commissioners are empowered to fix the rules and regulations, which means that if they believe $3 instead of $2 should be paid for the killing of a fox, for example, they can set the higher bounty. And so on with regard to the other bounties.

Thus Dr. Flack seems to have done the correct thing in this matter.

The Cumberland News hopes this will clarify a situation over which there has been undue misapprehension.

Some Interesting Housing Figures

A BULLETIN just issued by the federal Census bureau shows that urban places having populations of 10,000 or more increased by ninety-five to a total of 1,077 in this country during the last decennium. Their population increased 7.5 percent to a total of 58,340,077. Those gaining in population numbered 829 and those losing numbered 248.

This particular bulletin has to do with housing, and it shows that there were 18,228,491 dwelling units in these 1,077 urban places, of which 796,148, or 4.4 percent, were vacant and for sale and for rent. There was, however, a wide vacancy range, from less than one percent in fifty-nine of these places to more than ten percent in twenty of them. Low vacancy ratios were found in industrial towns, and high vacancy ratios were found in seasonal resort places.

Now, let us see how Cumberland stacks in the figuring. Its population increased to 39,483 from 37,747 within its municipal boundaries. The total number of dwellings found by the census takers was 10,543, of which 10,340 were found to be occupied. Only 193 were found to have been vacant, for sale or for rent, a percentage of 1.8 of the total. Only ten of the vacant dwellings were found to be not for sale or for rent.

That is a low percentage as compared with the national ratio. It is of interest to note that this percentage was 5.4 percent for the District of Columbia, 6.9 for Annapolis, 2.5 for Cambridge, 1.1 for Frederick, 1.8 percent for Hagerstown and two percent for Salisbury.

The larger occupation percentage denotes, of course, a greater need for housing facilities; and it does not necessarily imply that all dwellings occupied are what they should be. It does denote a larger degree of business and industrial activity.

The Serious Question Of Inflation

RECENT RECOMMENDATIONS by Federal Reserve officials for blocking further additions to the nation's rapidly mounting money-supply, thus checking the trend toward inflation, will, if put into effect, merely "patch up a battered financial Uncle Sam for the next two or three years," according to Harry Scherman, president of the Book-of-the-Month Club, who contributes the leading article to the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post on the question: "Will We Have Inflation?"

Pointing out that the present money-supply is already fifty percent greater than ever before in our history, that it is "turning over" faster and faster with the improvement in business activity, and that, under the present war economy, the share of goods available to civilians cannot increase proportionately, the article states that the stage is now fully set for a wartime inflationary rise in prices.

"It is the dangerous concurrence in full swing of these three factors that was in the minds of the Federal Reserve officials in making their recommendations to Congress."

Mr. Scherman, who is the author of The Promises Men Live By and the provocative pamphlet, The Real Danger In Our Gold, points out that the Federal Reserve recommendations can at best prove only temporary stop-gaps when the long-term situation is kept in mind.

The real danger, he asserts, is the possible "eventual collapse of the government's credit if the administration's fiscal philosophy is not completely changed."

"It is not the size of the federal debt that is the crux of the matter, but its never-ending increase. For that increase can only take place by actual additions or potential additions to our money-supply, to a final point where that money-supply may become so huge that a distrust of the dollar would become justifiable."

In such an event there is only one protection against a runaway inflation, Mr. Scherman states—"complete control by the central government, such as exists in Germany, of all prices, production and wages. This would be the end of the free enterprise system. In other words, if we ever see totalitarianism in the United States, it can be pretty safely predicted that it will come rumbling down this road."

That declaration, indeed, furnishes food for grave thought on the part of all Americans.

Addis Ababa and Italian Morale

BOMBASTIC CLAIMS coming from Italian sources regarding Fascist military achievements in the Balkans may be taken with some discount. Mussolini has been fantastically extravagant in all his statements.

That made by Il Duce in 1936 when Marshal Badoglio entered Addis Ababa is recalled. In it Mussolini declared that "we are ready to defend our shining victory with the same intrepid, irrevocable decision with which we achieved it."

But when the British announced the other day that their troops had marched into Addis Ababa, the terse statement was made that "it was believed the city had fallen without a struggle."

Quite a difference between purpose and accomplishment; but an insight into the morale of Italian soldiers.

Our lookout over in North Cumberland says that what is meant by "cutting down drastically" these days is that we may have to do without a few of the many things the old folks never had.

It is reported that British bombers damaged the Berlin courts. It is not believed, however, that it was a blow at justice.

No matter how early a home owner puts up his screen, the first fly always manages to get into the house ahead of him.

Confession of a Hypocrite

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Once I wrote an article about Saul of Tarsus, about whom I really know very little.

The next day a friend of mine, a clergyman, came into my office and said he agreed with my amateurish analysis of Saul's conversion to Christianity.

Marshall Maslin

That made me happy until a few days later when I received an anonymous poem that abused me for daring to write about religion—a fairly good sonnet in which I was told that if there is an afterlife or a God to judge us mortals then—

"Then shall you know what here it is you've writ
Are but the words of one rank hypocrite."

How amusing that a stranger should know I'm a hypocrite. But he may be right.

One night I was in a temper and spanked our puppy for something I wouldn't have spanked him for if I hadn't been in a temper. (Hypocrite!)

Once somebody asked me if I'd ever read "Nicholas Nickleby." I said yes, but I hadn't. (Hypocrite!)

Once a lady showed me around her garden, chatting charmingly about her flowers. I pretended great interest but I was bored. (Hypocrite!)

Once a friend wrote a novel and I reviewed it, saying it was very fine—which it wasn't. (Hypocrite!)

Once upon a time a man came to see me with a letter from a friend. I talked to him for half an hour, was polite, told him I hoped to see much more of him—which wasn't true. . . . He was polite, too, and said he'd call again and return a book I'd pressed upon him. But he didn't. (Two hypocrites!)

Once I went somewhere and made a talk and said, at the end, how nice it had been and how much I'd enjoyed it. But it was agony and I'd had no fun at all. (Hypocrite!)

And once a man wrote me a nasty letter, but signed his name. I wrote a friendly letter in reply, masking my animosity. (Hypocrite!)

* * *

There's a touch of hypocrisy in all of us, and not all hypocrisy is bad!

Easter Gives Hope For Piteous World, Gen. Johnson Says

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

SAN FRANCISCO, April 10—Holy week is better observed on the Pacific Coast, I think, than in some other parts of the country. I am not now referring to the more rigorous piety and discipline of Roman Catholicism in this sacred seven days but to a more general public recognition that this really is a sacred season and that it means something.

Hugh S. Johnson

It begins with tens of thousands of people celebrating sunrise services of Palm Sunday outdoors among these coastal hills and is in everybody's mind on through Easter. It is bootless to surmise the reason for this difference in outlook, if any. Perhaps it is a tradition left over from the old Spanish days of the "Splendid Idle Forties."

Fragrant with Memories

The whole coast is fragrant with these memories. Nearly all the towns and cities are named for saints and holy images—San Francisco, Los Angeles and even a whole areas as big as some states designated on old maps "De la Familia Sagrada" or, to you, "Of the Holy Family."

Perhaps that has something to do with it notwithstanding that Los Angeles (but not San Francisco) is frequently described as "Des Moines, Iowa, greatly expanded and side-slipped to the Pacific—" meaning thereby that, although it may still be the city "of the angels," it can't be exactly regarded as the exclusive citadel of "native sons of the Golden West." Yet it is closer to Mexico and the old Spanish influence is strong.

Such general California recognition of Holy week may have an explanation in a precisely reverse direction.

Theory Is Upheld

Both Holy week and Easter were preceded in the story of man by pagan festivals of spring, the observance of which traces back to the very beginning of history—the resurrection of the whole earth from the death of winter. You could believe in that theory if you could see California now. Having lived here many years, I am no tyro and I don't want to emulate Graham MacNamee who came out here years ago to broadcast a great football game and used most of his time on the air raving about the attractions of California. Just the same there has been an unusual rainfall and I never saw this most beautiful of all states in such gorgeous Easter raiment.

Maybe that purely pagan delight is also part of this year's attention to the coming Christian festival. All the causes here suggested play some part but I think there is another and a stronger one. It is the contrast between this peaceful, beautiful and now very prosperous season and the starvation, fear, hatreds and indescribable suffering of so many people in so many other parts of the world.

Great Significance

I don't want to get soft and go sloppy and lyrical on the customers—although it is not at all difficult to do in this environment—but to me, there seems to be something significant and symbolic in the lovely Easter emergence from winter of this beautiful and peaceful region.

In the cycle of human events darkness and winter do not last forever. The return of Christ at Easter was a similar symbol. It marked the beginning of the end of barbarism for a large part of the earth, for many centuries and until now. His influence is now again shadowed by the mass madness of men in Europe and Asia but the wheel always turns full cycle.

The eastern Easter greetings are still in point—"Christ is risen. He is risen indeed." He will rise again and again for this piteous world even from the darkness of death. I am glad I came out here and saw this miracle of spring. I can't explain just why or how, but it has given me new faith and hope.

Maryland Farm Musings

By the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

Maryland growers of red clover seed produced 36,000 bushels of clean seed in 1940, as compared with 62,000 bushels produced in 1939, according to F. S. Holmes, Chief of the Maryland Seed Inspection Service. He points out that one-third of the 1940 crop was retained for use on the farms where it was grown.

Out of 312 growers enrolled in the thirteenth annual Maryland Ten-Ton Tomato Club Contest, seventeen qualified for membership in the club by growing 10 or more tons of tomatoes per acre.

Twelve Maryland CCC Camps carry on soil conservation, drainage and forestry activities in the state while five others build parks for city people.

Fusarium wilt is caused by a fungus which is rather widely distributed in the soil, according to officials of the University of Maryland Department of Plant Pathology. Fusarium enters the plants through the roots from the infected soil and grows into the water conducting vessels, causing the leaflets to turn yellow, wilt and die.

Egg production in Maryland increased from 28,750,000 dozens in 1939 to 29,242,000 dozens in 1940, according to Dr. Morley A. Jull, head of the University of Maryland Poultry Department.

Inspection of Maryland turkey breeding flocks reveals that owners are now "streamlining" their birds to meet new market demands, according to Wade H. Rice, specialist in poultry for the University of Maryland extension service. He points out that present day demand is for a more compact, chunky or "blocky" type of bird, as contrasted with the old type Mammoth Bronze or common grade turkeys which were so plentiful a few years ago.

A Sorry Spectacle

From the Texas Weekly

A sorry spectacle is being presented before the world by the great American "arsenal of democracy" just now. Strikes are paralyzing defense industries, while mobs of American workmen, union and non-union, engage in violent street riots which the constituted authorities seem helpless to deal with effectively. Even the powerful federal government, at a time when it finds it necessary in the country's defense to seize foreign ships in our ports and to take other vigorous measures, is impotent, for the moment at least, in relation to this spectacle.

Only the thought that this is a temporary condition and that the processes of democracy will operate effectively in due course can mitigate in any degree the humiliating character of this spectacle for us. But this thought cannot sustain us indefinitely. It must be justified by events. The faith of the people in free institutions must be vindicated by results. Such results may be maturing even as this is written, and they may be fully attained by the time it appears in print. Democratic processes require patience, and we must not be betrayed into snap judgment or impulsive expression. Meantime, it remains a sorry spectacle.

Per capita production of cigarettes in the United States yearly has reached an equivalent of sixty-eight packs of twenty cigarettes each, census figures show. This would be equivalent to ninety packs per capita for all of smoking age.

Retail florists enjoyed a big year in 1939 with total sales amounting to $149,000,000, according to the Census bureau. This was fifty-one percent greater than for 1935.

More than 420 million handkerchiefs valued by factories at $20,000,000 are made in the United States each year, according to the Census bureau.

Pulpwood trees grown in South Carolina reach maturity in thirteen to twenty years.

THE GEESE THAT LAY GOLDEN EGGS

Shipping Problem Seems To Be Chief Concern of President, Sullivan Says

By MARK SULLIVAN

WASHINGTON, April 10—In the president's office, at this press conference, was a new detail of furnishing. Supported on two easels, across the room from the president's desk, where he could raise his eyes to it, was a huge map of the world, some ten feet long, four wide. This map was different from the ones that, from time to time during the war, have been noticed in the president's office—most of those have been of Europe, or of the Atlantic ocean and abutting land. What made the present map noticeable was its immense size, the fact that it embraced the whole world, and that it put especial emphasis on the seas—criss-crossing it were lines marking shipping routes and ocean distances.

Mark Sullivan

One surmised, though this was a surmise only, that the president's recent talks with his advisers have included a good deal about Britain's shipping problem, and how America might help solve it. Washington hears that there is under way a project for sending supplies to the British front in North Africa by a new route, which, by starting from our ports on the Pacific ocean, would avoid the German submarines in the Atlantic. To the same purport, there is talk that the president will withdraw the waters about North Africa from their existing status as a "war zone"—so long as they are a war zone, American ships cannot enter them.

Not Mentioned

But if anything about this was in the president's mind, he did not mention it at the press conference. Indeed, this was one of those conferences at which the president seemed to prefer to use the time for relatively minor matters, as if to disarm or postpone questions about matters—more immediately momentous—which in the present case would have been the crisis in British shipping, and the strikes in our defense industries.

He began by saying he had two stories for us. The first was about a new organization, a union of services for the recreation and spiritual welfare of draftees in camps, taking in the YMCA, YWCA, Catholic Community Service, Jewish Welfare Board, Salvation Army, and the Travelers' Aid Society. This, while beneficent and important, was not a matter to which the newspaper men, had they had direction of the conference, would have spent more than a brief moment. Mr. Roosevelt, however, dwelt upon it. He read practically the whole of a rather long statement, which apparently had been prepared for him, for he did not throw into the reading of it as much force or elocution as he might have given to one of his own compositions.

Not Exciting

He seemed to sense that the newspaper men might not rate this bit of news as especially exciting. He pointed out what he regarded as the importance of it—the fact that all these welfare organizations were brought under the same tent, which, the president said, is a major accomplishment, it did not happen in the Great war. This point, he said, is what he would emphasize if he were writing the story.

This device for generously instructing the newspapermen in their craft is frequent with Mr. Roosevelt. Probably this kindly helpfulness is not confined to Mr. Roosevelt's relations with the press. When he talks with architects, one imagines he says, "If I were building it"; when talking with artists, "If I were painting it". One wonders if, when talking to judges, he ever says, "If I were deciding it". One wonders does Prime Minister Churchill ever hear, "If I were managing it."

Into the other subject Mr. Roosevelt initiated, he put some gusto. It was a record, an index of a sort, to show progress of defense work. The index was in the form of quantity of money actually paid out by the Treasury for work done (as distinguished from money merely appropriated by Congress.)

The number of dollars paid out for defense material, the president said, was greater during the first three months of 1941, than during the last six months of 1940. It was greater for each of several categories which the president enumerated—aircrfat, ships, plant facilities, fortifications.

Progress Unsatisfactory

About progress, as measured in dollars spent, the president had some enthusiasm though he was careful to emphasize that he was not satisfied, that progress is still much too slow.

In this talk about figures, there had been much use of a statistical phrase, "breaking down" over-all figures into concrete items. Subsequently, when Mr. Roosevelt said he was not satisfied with the progress, someone asked him what were the main reasons why the program is bogging down. Mr. Roosevelt replied that the main reasons were individual persons, human beings. Upon that a newspaper man asked, "Can you break that down"? The answer to that question—had Mr. Roosevelt chosen to answer it, would have meant naming certain individuals. That question, and Mr. Roosevelt's quick, brief, and faintly embarrassed declination to answer, provided the most spontaneous laugh of the conference, in which Mr. Roosevelt joined.

In the remainder of the conference the newspaper men took the initiative with questions, of which Mr. Roosevelt answered most, but seemed not disposed to enlarge upon the strike situation.

U-Boat Shelling Here Is Recorded By Eyewitness

By EDWIN C. HILL

It was on the bright Sunday morning of July 21, 1918, when the church bells were ringing, that the German submarine U 156 started shelling Provincetown, Mass. These were the first enemy shells to fall on our soil after more than a century of more or less complacent reliance on our protecting stretch of ocean. One of our airplanes tried to drop a monkey wrench on the sub—we had no bombs. The monkey wrench missed its mark.

Edwin C. Hill

The Chatham naval air base was nearby, but the boys were having a baseball game and, what with one thing or another, the shelling went on for hours. At the naval base at Provincetown, there was a fleet of fifty-one submarine chasers, but by the time they got untracked and moved out in battle formation, the sub had moved on, after popping off some tugs and a row of barges. Such was the sum of our resistance to this new and novel attack from overseas.

Reviewed in Detail

This historic but little noted episode is reviewed in minute detail in the book "German Subs and Yankee Waters," published last summer by Harry J. James. Mr. James, as a schoolboy, saw the above one-way shooting match, was impressed by it and put in the next twenty years rounding up that little known and lightly regarded story of the surprising activity and depredations of the German U-boats on our shore during the World War. Hence the book.

Mr. James thinks the Germans have been busy and efficient in submarine planning since the World war and that it is quite possible that the U-156 was just a toy compared with what they have now. We bring the book forward in the files today as pertinent to dispatches from various quarters, possibly speculative, but none the less disquieting in their stories of troop-carrying submarines being remedied by the Germans. Even if this is farfetched, there's no denial that American coastal, if not land, operations have figured heavily in the Germans' interim plans, and there is much in this book that flares into headline interest today.

Trainer and Skipper

Mr. James is Superintendent of Schools at Simsbury, Conn., he is a trainer of Sea Scouts, and many of the boys he has trained are in the navy or the merchant marine. He is skipper of the oldest Sea Scout ship in Connecticut and vice-commandore of the Charter Oak Council. He has woven into this background of training and experience his long and intensive study of what the Germans did once and what they may do in the future. It was long before the "battle of the Atlantic" began looming that he urged that we'd better mobilize our best technical brains against whatever may come.

He is convinced that, for a knock-down and drag-out war the Germans have a shrewdly prepared plan of penetration of New York harbor by mammoth submarines and domination of the Atlantic States industrial region. We read the book when it appeared and now find that it takes on vastly heightened interest in the light of what is happening today.

Eight in Front Yard

Here are the German subs which in 1918 ranged around our front yard, sinking ships, with no retaliation: U-53, U-151, U-156, U-140, U-117, U-155, U-152, U-139. What about today, with the tremendously increased range and power of the German underseas boats? There's nothing to get jittery about, and our defensive resources are by no means limited to a monkey wrench.

But Mr. James thinks it wouldn't do to feel too safe and satisfied.

"If America did not learn its lesson of unpreparedness from its experience with the U-boat raiders," he writes, "there is none to blame but its military advisers. If a half dozen submarines could wreak havoc under such unfavorable conditions as the U-boats operated in 1918, what might be the result should a super-power send its entire fleet of super-submarines to our shores at the outbreak of war.

Those who cry for peace when there is no peace, and bemoan the enormous expenditures for capital ships to be used offensively, could have little grievance toward a naval program that provided for the construction of fleets of destroyers, sub-chasers, patrol-boats and mine-sweepers, which could be used solely for defensive purposes."

Morning Motto

The place to take the true measure of a man is not the forum or the field, not the market place or the amen corner, but at his own fireside. There he lays aside his mask. Sportsmen Meet In Hagerstown

HAGERSTOWN, April 10 (AP)—About 500 sportsmen from Washington county, other counties of Maryland and sections in nearby Pennsylvania and West Virginia listened this evening to talks by game authorities on hunting, fishing and conservation, received prizes and saw motion pictures of hunting and fishing at the annual banquet of the Conococheague Sportsmen's Club of Hagerstown held in the Franklin Court auditorium.

J. Hammond Brown, Baltimore, outdoor writer for the Hearst newspapers, who was the toastmaster, introduced the guests. He read regrets from Governor Herbert R. O'Conor, Thomas W. Pangborn and William Preston Lane, Jr., of Hagerstown, who were unable to be present.

Harris Breth, Clearfield, Pa., fishing and hunting commentator from the Pittsburgh radio station KDKA, spoke on conservation and need for proper food, cover and protection for game. He advised cutting down of scrub timber. He said real conservation means more game for the hunters.

J. Alden Knight, author and publisher of the Solunar Tables, gave a demonstration of fly casting with a miniature outfit.

The three members of the State Game and Inland Fish Commission present were Garner W. Denmead, Baltimore, chairman; James H. Lambrill, Frederick and Fulcher P. Smith, Cumberland. Others introduced included Edwin Warfield, Jr., Daisy, Md., chairman of State Conservation Commission; Ernest A. Vaughn, Princess Anne, wildlife technician; William W. Britton, Chambersburg, Pa., district game protector; Charles Jackson, Washington, assistant director of the Fish and Wildlife Service, game wardens from various counties and representatives of many sportsmens clubs.

Modernization

right to "instruct" the jury in civil cases.

Formerly, he explained, the judge could merely instruct the jury as to the law but could not comment on the evidence. Now, however, he may review the evidence and comment on the credibility of witnesses, provided he explains to the jury that it is not bound by what he says concerning the facts.

Another important change is the substitution of "pre-trial" procedure in civil cases to speed up and simplify trials. Under the supervision of the court, litigants are called together in order to establish uncontradicted facts and arrange to confine the actual trial to the issues. Thus "tricks" are eliminated, Capper pointed out, and by getting at the true facts and then applying the law, "you get pretty close to justice."

Advances Are Made

Turning to advances made on a national scale, the bar association president told of the efforts of the American Bar Association to secure uniform state laws on many subjects and to clear up conflicts between states on the interpretation of the common law.

This latter task, which Capper compared with the formulation of the Justinian and Napoleonic codes, is being handled by the American Law Institute, named by the American Bar Association and financed by the Rockefeller and Carnegie foundations.

Capper was introduced by William M. Somerville, former president of the Allegany County Bar Association.

Guests at the meeting included Joseph A. Sedlock, of Towson, and Clarence O[illegible]

"we must forget our personal differences and get together".

Stewart said the Allegany county Democrats were taking the credit for much constructive work that in reality was made possible by the Republican board of county commissioners including the Savage River Dam, NYA and WPA projects and sewing rooms.

The Republicans, he said, believed that due to the times, some constructive program was necessary. He quoted F. W. Springer, former WPA area supervisor, as saying that he "got more cooperation from Allegany county Republicans than from all the Democrats in all the other counties."

Declaring that the Republican party was both constructive and broadminded regarding necessary constructive programs, Stewart said "they can't tell me the Democrats control the destiny of Allegany county."

Stewart stated that he had been approached by Montgomery county central committeeman and that he had told them he would be a candidate if given a unanimous endorsement.

The speaker said that in his opinion a Republican candidate could not be defeated if he runs well in Montgomery.

Many Republicans Attend

Stewart said he could not justify sending American soldiers to Europe or using American ships to convoy supplies. He said he favored giving Britain and her allies the supplies but was of the opinion these countries should convoy the materials.

"I am not a pacifist by any means," Stewart said. "I believe men should be trained. But I can't believe and won't believe that they should be sent across the ocean to fight. As county commissioner Bob Hutcheson and I saw too many young fellows sent to institutions who had been in the first war."

Among the Republican workers present last night were William H. Geppert, Cumberland; George E. Jordan, Cumberland; H. D. Eisel, Robert Geary, Joe James, Harry Adams and William Stewart, Frostburg; James W. Morris, Cumberland;

Paul M. Fletcher, Cumberland; H. A. Johnson, Cumberland; Edgar M. Lewis, Cumberland; Huber D. Kington, Cumberland; Henry Eisentraut, Midland; Edward R. Muir, Midland; J. French VanMeter, Cresaptown; William A. Wilson, Midland; Nathaniel Dunn, Midland; Walter E. Ross, Midland; James G. Blair, Richard S. Hotchkiss and Arthur S. Blair, all of Midland; F. C. Raley, Cumberland; R. M. Huster and M. H. Hyde, Bowling Green; Herbert Cowden, Cumberland.

John J. Dunn, Robert M. Hutcheson, James L. Symons, Cumberland; Noel Speir Cook, Frostburg; George Erling, Morgan C. Harris, Stanley O. Hamilton, David M. Steele and Hugh A. Hotchkiss, all of Cumberland.

Reed Tells Why

state of school administration brought about by this bill." Reed declared the "near-chaos was not brought about by the bill, but the bill was introduced to correct just that situation."

The legislator, commenting on the "hullabaloo" raised over the measure, said that there was no outcry when a million-dollar bond issue was passed for the Savage river dam in 1939. Pointing out he was not criticizing this expenditure, he said, however, that provision of "proper school facilities" was just as important as the dam and charged once more that the Mt. Savage school had been found "unsafe and unfit for use."

With regard to the position of the Allegany County Taxpayers Research Association, Reed declared most of its members were residents of Frostburg and Cumberland, whose school needs have been "well taken care of."

Johnston Takes Exception

Meanwhile, just what the position of the tax league was on the matter remained a somewhat moot question. The group had been reported as strongly on record against the bill, but its chairman, Frank E. Smith, said this was in error.

The tax league, according to Smith, was merely investigating the bill and the stand of the county government on it and has not taken—and will not take—anw action on it in view of the refusal of the county commissioners to go on record in opposition to it.

Smith's denial of reports that the group he heads had asked the county commissioners to oppose the bill brought counter-denials at the court house yesterday. Minutes of the meeting Tuesday are at direct variance with Smith's statement, it was said.

Meanwhile, Walter Johnston county auditor, took exception to Smith's statement that Johnston was the propelling force behind the telegram dispatched by the tax group to Governor O'Conor asking a hearing on the bill.

Johnston said he called Smith and asked him what, if anything, the taxpayers' association was going to do about the bill and was met with the query "What can we do?" Johnston said he told Smith the group might ask the governor for a hearing. Asked by Smith what the attitude of the board of county commissioners might be on the bill, Johnston said he told Smith to come before the board and find out.

Johnston stoutly denied Smith's reported implication that he suggested that the taxpayers' group oppose the bill. The county auditor admitted that his conversation with Smith was of an ex-officio nature but he said he is "willing to accept full responsibility for my statements."

Saying a Lot In a Few Words

MITCHELL, Neb. (AP)—Mrs. L. M. Skinner of Topeka, Kas. sent a post card to her sister, Mrs. Albert Ottjes of Mitchell, Neb., that said: "Third John, verses 13 and 14."

In the bible Mrs. Ottjes read:

"I had many things to write but I will not with pen and ink write unto thee:

ST. MARY'S TO HOLD DEVOTION OF THREE HOURS AGONY TODAY

The Congregational Devotion of the Three Hours' Agony, commemorating the Three Hours Our Lord suffered on the Cross, will be solemnly observed at St. Mary's church from noon to three o'clock. The devotion is commonly called "congregational" inasmuch as those in attendance participate actively in the recitation of the prayers, in the singing of the hymns and in the saying of the Litanies relating to each of The Seven Words, which in reality are full expressions of the last sentences Our Lord uttered, in the following sequence:

I—Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do.
II—This day thou shalt be with Me in Paradise.
III—Behold thy Mother! Behold thy Son!
IV—My God! My God! Why hast Thou forsaken Me?
V—I thirst.
VI—It is consummated.
VII—Father, into Thy hands, I commend My Spirit.

In relation to each word there follows a series of seven discourses to be delivered in order by Father Landrigan, Father Russell and Father Alphonse, O. M. Cap., all so arranged with congregational prayers, hymns and litanies as to cover precisely the three hour period. Booklets containing the complete devotion are available in the vestibule of the church. Those in attendance my remain for the entire service or come and go according to their time as available.

Brickyard 'Holiday' To Continue Today

Federal Conciliator Reported Due To Sit In on Conference Today

The "holiday" at the clay mines and brick plant of the Union Mining Company at Mt. Savage seemed destined to continue today.

Spokesmen for the Brick and Clay Workers Industrial union (CIO), which called the "holiday" in apparent protest over delay in contract negotiations, declined comment until a meeting this morning, and F. C. Strickland, general manager of the plant, could not be reached for a statement.

It was reported a conference between the union and R. Green Annan, president of the company, was scheduled today, with a federal conciliator sitting in. This could not be verified, however.

The stoppage, which union leaders said was not a "strike," was called Wednesday night.

The union met at the Junior Order hall yesterday afternoon and last night, but spokesmen refused to discuss what action, if any, is planned. There was no picketing of the plant yesterday, and workers were paid off. It was the regular payday.

SIX DEEDS ARE RECORDED HERE

Six deeds and thirty conditional sale contracts were filed yesterday in the office of the clerk of court.

Owen Murray to Carl Crabtree, R. D. 1, Cumberland, parcels in Corriganville.

Thirty additional sale contracts were filed by the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company.

Alleged 'Peeping Tom' Jailed on Charge of Disturbing the Peace

Stanley Davis, 328 Cecelia street, was arrested early yesterday morning after police received complaints from residents in the North Waverly Terrace section about a "prowler and peeping tom."

Davis was later sentenced to five days in jail when he was unable to pay $5 fine in police court on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Lieut. James E. Van, who investigated, said Davis was convicted once before on the same charge. Officer C. C. Roby assisted in the arrest.

Suspended Sentence Is Given William Landaker

Charged with taking a load of manure from the property of Joseph Baker, of Mexico Farms, William Landaker received a suspended thirty-day jail term when arraigned yesterday in trial magistrates court.

Magistrate Frank A. Perdew said Landaker testified he was hauling the manure, valued at $2, for a man who told him he had purchased the fertilizer from Baker.

Landaker was released after he was ordered to make restitution and pay court costs totaling $3.35.

Hearing Is Scheduled For Julius Linaburg On Motor Violation

Julius Linaburg, 30 West First street, was arrested yesterday afternoon in South Cumberland by Officer L. L. Youngblood on a charge of careless driving.

He was summoned to appear tomorrow in police court for a hearing.

Local Boxer Escapes Injury When Car Strikes Pole

William E. Niland, 310 Park street, local boxer, escaped injury Wednesday night about 9:45 o'clock when the car he was driving crashed against a pole and knocked down a post along the National highway, west of Clarysville, state police reported.

Niland, driving the car of Fred Jenkins, this city, said he swerved to avoid hitting another machine. The car was badly damaged.

No charges were placed against Niland, who was driving alone.

Public Buildings Here Close in Observance Of Good Friday

Three public buildings, namely the Allegany County court house, the Allegany County Welfare Board and the Cumberland Free Public Library, will be closed all day today in observance of Good Friday.

The city hall will be closed starting at noon and a number of stores will close from noon to 3 p. m.

Thirteen states of the union observe Good Friday as a complete holiday while in other states there are cities whose business men give time off to their employes to spend the most sacred period of the saddest day of the year in prayer.

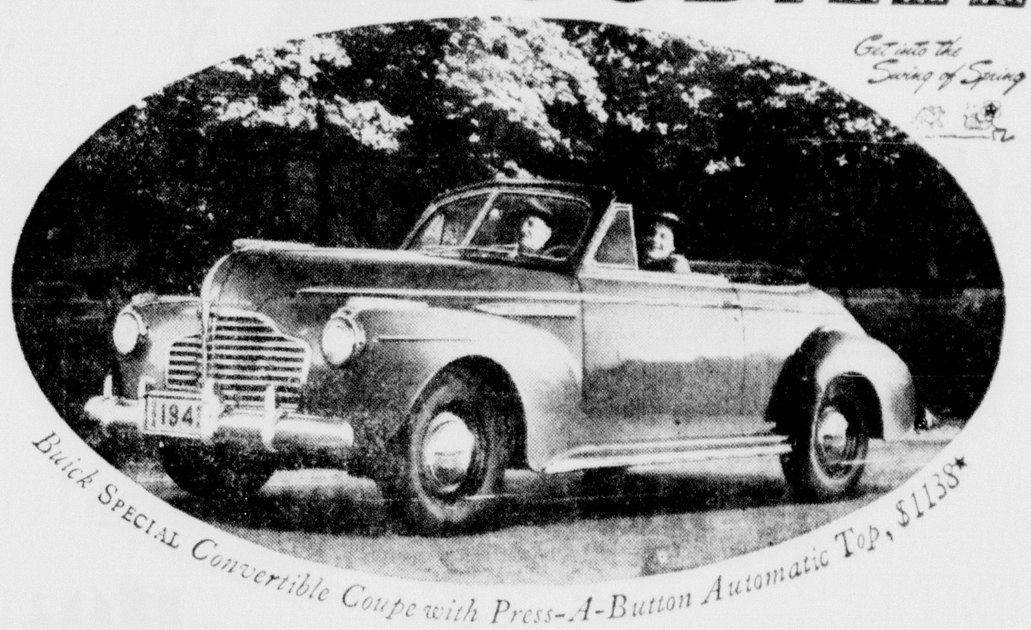
No wonder we're staging a SPRING JUBILEE



Buick Special Convertible Coupe with Press-A-Button Automatic Top, $1138*
WHAT you see here is something more than the very picture of bright and thrilling action and trim fresh styling.
It is something even more than the most talked-about automobile in America—it is the most outstanding Buick in all our long history.
It is selling at record pace—making valued new friends among people heretofore unacquainted with Buick—and it not only holds fourth place in the country as a whole, but in the nation's No. 1 automobile market it holds second place, topped only by one of the lowest-priced cars.
Such a record, when made by a car of Buick's size, power and price, really calls for jubilee, so we're staging one.
In all Buick showrooms, starting April 12, you'll find special displays in fittingly springlike surroundings where you can see, admire, sit in and probe into the year's unquestioned Biggest Hit.
Here you can get the whole story about Fireball design that squeezes more good and more mileage out of gasoline—here you can get all the facts (and straight) about Compound Carburetion,* and how it ups mileage as much as 10% to 15% over last year's engines of the same size.
Here you'll see and can try out the very newest Buicks, the four new, more compact Buick Specials that wrap up Fireball straight-eight life and ginger in an easy-handling package that is actually roomier inside than some sixes that cost you more.
In a word, here you see the values that set the standard by which all cars are being judged today.
Why not drop in and browse around? The latch string's out—you will be very welcome anytime.
*Optional at extra cost on the Buick Special, standard equipment on all other series.
BUICK PRICES BEGIN AT $915 for the Business Coupe
*delivered at Flint, Mich. State tax, optional equipment and accessories—extra. Prices subject to change without notice.

FALSE TEETH

That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wabbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). THE DAILY STORY

PETER'S WIFE

The New Land Made Peter Almost Forget the Horrors of the Old. But There Are Horrors beyond the Touch of Time

By A. K. HART

His name in English would boil down to something like Peter. He came into this country in a hurry, with many a look backward over his shoulder. But he did all right when he got his breath. He opened a little curio shop.

Peter had a knack with curios. Remember those hand-painted woodenface egg cups I had with the little knitted tassel caps to keep the eggs hot? I got them at Peter's.

We Heard His Name Called

He had a patriarchal old clerk working for him then—atmosphere I guess— wasn't much good otherwise. Looked scared to death of Peter now I think back on it. Must have had to step pretty lively. Died one day without much fuss. Probably glad to be rid of the situation.

Oh yes, he'd been married. That's what I'm leading up to. And he had three children, two boys and a girl.

He'd never seen the girl, born shortly after he fled his country. But, as I said, he'd had to get out in a rush—just two jumps ahead of the government police. You never could fool around much over there if you didn't agree with whatever party got into power. His wife was safe enough, though, because of an influential family. He'd promised to send for her and the children as soon as his shop made enough to feed more than himself. But before that happened, the first World War broke out and after a few years of that the revolution came. And it scattered his wife and children and her family—those it didn't kill—like a pile of feathers in a high wind. When the dust settled, his own search unavailing, he asked two or three organizations set up for that purpose to try and find them. Even they were a little dubious when they learned he'd had no word for seven years.

I suppose you wonder what his wife was like? Well, it had been one of those "arranged" marriages. He was an up and coming minor official in the government, and Anna, besides belonging to an influential family, as I said, had quite a bit of money in her own right, was tolerably educated, and had important friends everywhere. Made up for her being a bit older and no beauty. Matter of fact he never could understand why she had married him. It just looks as if she fell in love with the handsome young clerk and pulled the right strings to make him realize her worth and her willingness. So he married her.

It was only after he had come to America and achieved his mediocre prosperity that he knew he could be equal, even superior to his wife. Perhaps that consideration caused him to keep up the search for his family after everyone told him it was hopeless. His overwhelming desire to impress them and govern their lives made him sure they were somewhere to be found.

He had another reason, too. Peter felt that Anna with her talents, her poise, her background and their handsome children would be the sensation of the neighborhood. Their home would be a more popular gathering place than his landlord's parlor was.

Six months after Peter had enlisted the aid of the refugee organizations word came that his family was found and if he provided passage they'd be sent to America. Of course he sent it, and went through all the red tape connected with it and waited as best he could till the word came they were at Ellis Island. I can remember the day yet. He dropped everything and rushed over there.

They put him in one of the big, barnlike rooms and asked him to wait. He worked himself into a cold sweat. There were several travel-worn, bewildered peasants in the room. He had glanced over them as he came in, but Anna was not among them. He was startled at their ravaged and embittered faces. He was glad Anna was not one of them. Then he worried about how he looked or if she would notice his improvement in seven years.

He heard his name called and turned excitedly to find it was only an official who asked him to follow. Peter was led down the long room and through the door into a smaller place that was not so crowded.

"That woman in the corner is Anna M——, listed as your wife."

Peter stepped past the man. If the woman pointed out to him had not been too listless to notice him she might have been frightened by his expression.

Could this be his wife—this old, terribly old, broken woman? Thin grey hair, thin sharp features, thin stooped body, thin hands clutching at the two children who sat vacantly beside her. Her face showed her fear of the land she had left and her desperate fear of the land she was approaching. A new life would be another battle for her. And she had so many aching wounds from the others! She hid her face in her hands. Hid the record of terror, cruelty, hunger and death.

Peter stared at her aghast, remembering his carefully planted descriptions of a beautiful wife, a gracious hostess, and the nightly houseful of admiring "company."

The officer, who considered himself a very busy man, broke in on his reflections with a brusque, "Well, is she your wife or do we send her back?" He was irritated by Peter's stupidity. "These peasants, you never could wake 'em up." And he demanded more emphatically, "Is she your wife?"

Dully, Peter said yes, and turned on his heel and went out the same way he'd come in. The woman, still clutching her children, followed him.

Honeymoon Gold

by PEGGY DERN

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

TOM AND BETSY FORMAN inherit Halcyon Island from invalid Jordan Markham, who was found shot to death. Markham had established the spot as a "honeymoon isle," but his ideas had been opposed bitterly by crooked business associates who wanted to make it a base for smuggling aliens into the United States.

NATALIE SCHUYLER, moneyed society girl, and

BROOKS MARCHBANKS, possessor of high social position, but not much money, are married.

After spending the first night of their honeymoon in separate rooms, Natalie and Brooks continue their journey, but find a wrecked car with an injured boy and girl. Natalie sees that they are taken care of at the nearest hospital.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

THE DOCTOR'S eyes widened a little. It was obvious that a name so well known must have struck a responsive chord in his memory, and he said pleasantly, "Then our two young people were very fortunate to enlist your interest and your aid. I can assure you that we shall do everything humanly possible to pull them through. The young woman, although her own physical resistance is about on a par with the young man's, was not badly hurt. She was flung clear of the car, and has a couple of broken ribs and some painful bruises and lacerations. But I think she needs plenty of good, nourishing food and rest and peace of mind more than anything else."

Before Natalie could answer, the nurse came out of the girl's room and said quietly, "She's asking for you—if you have a moment to spare."

"Yes, of course," said Natalie eagerly. And to Brooks, "You'll wait for me, darling?"

Brooks' eyes were cold, but his manner was correctly polite and his tone was calm as he said, "Of course." As though he very much resented her question.

She looked at him swiftly, uneasily. He was so furious. They'd have to have a long talk, get all this straightened out. It was silly of him to be so outraged just because she had in the excitement of the moment forgotten that she was married.

The girl looked very young, with her black hair loose on the pillow, framing a small, elfin face. She couldn't have been more than 18 at the outside; small and thin and childish looking.

"You're the lady who found us," she began.

"I'm Mrs. Brooks Marchbanks," said Natalie quickly, and gave the girl a friendly, encouraging smile. "I'm on my honeymoon—and I can't bear it that you should be unhappy on a day when I'm starting a new life."

"Johnny and I are on our honeymoon, too," said the girl proudly. "And you couldn't possibly be any happier than we were—before the accident."

Her small face darkened and there were tears in her eyes. Natalie bent over her, saying swiftly, "Now, you mustn't cry. He's going to get well. He's got a marvelous chance. My husband and I have been talking to the doctor and he says your Johnny's going to have the best of everything."

The girl's face darkened with a bitterness that twisted every atom of youth and warmth out of it.

"Yeah—he's going to have the best of everything! He's going to get kicked out of here as soon as they find out that we can't pay even for a day's room rent in this hospital. My kind and Johnny's—we don't ever get anything but the chance to starve to death. We ain't ever had a break in our whole lives, so why should I think we are going to get one NOW?" she said through her teeth, her small face screwed up to check the tears that slid down her thin cheeks.

"Listen to me, child," said Natalie, and her voice shook a little with her earnestness, "I've promised you—"

"Sure, I know. You're swell. You're class. I knew that the minute I saw you," said the girl bitterly. "You think everything is swell because it always looks that way to you, but I KNOW. Johnny and me are done for—a couple of fool kids that thought we could beat the game. Just because we had a chance for a honeymoon we'd dreamed about all our lives—and Johnny's old jalopy and twenty bucks—we took a chance on getting married. And now—this! I might have known it wouldn't work. Swell things never do for kids like us."

Natalie's hand, warm and soft, with the magnificent old emerald that had been a betrothal ring in the Brooks family for five generations shimmering above the slim hoop of diamonds on her middle finger, closed warmly over the other girl's thin, shaking hand. And Natalie said firmly, "See here, my dear, I've given you my solemn word of honor that everything is going to be all right. You're not going to insult me by refusing to believe me?"

The girl's eyes dropped curiously to the two hands gripped so closely. She looked at her own hands, with their carefully painted nails that were rough and broken and stained. The soft, exquisitely kept hand of the other woman seemed to fascinate her.

After a moment she raised her eyes to Natalie's face and said huskily, "I'm sorry, but—well, of course I knew when you told me that the hospital wouldn't charge us anything because we were 'an emergency case,' that either you were lying to try to make me feel better or else you didn't know much about hospitals. I do—on account of I've got a father that's sick a lot, and we have to go to the charity hospital in our town. It's not much like this."

Natalie made a swift decision.

"Okay, you win," she said. "I might have known you'd have to have the truth. So here it is. The hospital is going to give your Johnny the best of everything—specialists, anything at all that will help him. And you, too. And they are going to send the bill to my husband and me. That's our honeymoon present to you and Johnny. NOW do you feel a little better?"

The girl stared at her, startled, breathless. If, for a moment Natalie had been afraid she might refuse, she knew now that the girl had no such thought in mind. It was as though Natalie's offer had come as an answer to prayer—and you don't refuse answers to prayer.

"Gee!" she whispered very low, a note of awe and relief in her voice. "I don't know what to say."

"You've said it." Natalie smiled warmly at her. "After all, when two couples are honeymooning and one couple gets in trouble, why shouldn't the other help out? Maybe that's why it happpened to be Brooks and I who came along first after your accident—instead of someone else. Maybe it was all meant to happen like this."

"Yeah," said the other girl. "It's going to be a funny kind of honeymoon," she went on after a moment of sober thought. "Johnny and me have been wanting to get married for almost a year. But he's got his mother, and a couple of kid brothers to bring up. And they need the salary I make, at home. Then this Halcyon Island thing came along and we got nominated. We had twenty-two dollars and eighty cents saved up, and Johnny says, 'We'll never have a better chance, Coralie—what if we DO have to come back and live with your folks, or mine? At least we'll have a month that'll be something to remember as long as we live.' And our folks said it was all right—"

Natalie looked down at her, puzzled.

LET'S TAKE THE LID OFF THE SECRET OF GOOD COFFEE!

Why make a mystery of successful coffee? There are just a few simple facts to keep in mind—then you'll brew coffee of magnificent flavor every time. First, you must start with fine coffee beans. That's why A&P has its own resident buyers in South America to buy the pick of the plantations.

Next, after skillful blending, coffee must be roasted precisely to the flavor peak. That's why A&P developed its own exclusive flavor-control ovens that work automatically, and roast each batch to just the same perfection.

Then, coffee must reach you fresh . . . so A&P Coffee is sent to our stores only in the flavor-sealed bean, and ground only at the moment of purchase.

Finally, coffee beans must be ground exactly right for each type of coffee pot, or else you lose much of the fine full flavor for which you are paying. Hence, A&P Coffee is Custom Ground for your own coffee-maker. You get all the fresh, magnificent flavor of coffee at its best.

There are three A&P Coffee blends to suit every taste; Eight O'Clock, mild and mellow; Red Circle, rich and full-bodied and Bokar, vigorous and winey. Try your favorite blend today.

Queries on Scarlet Fever, Adhesions Are Answered by Noted Physician

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"My child was exposed to scarlet fever and had a shot to prevent his getting it," a parent writes. About three weeks after the shot he broke out in a rash but had no other symptoms. In fact, he wasn't sick at all. With no fever, ear, nose or throat trouble, could he infect other children, and if so, how long would the germ be active?"

This is a very interesting question and emphasizes a number of points about scarlet fever at the present time. In the first place, it emphasizes the fact that the preventative serum for scarlet fever is not by any means 100 per cent effective. Undoubtedly the child had scarlet fever.

Another point of interest is that the scarlet fever we see nowadays is so mild as hardly to be worth taking seriously. It has been estimated that the mortality is now one, whereas it was 100 in 1860.

Strict quarintine regulations rule that scarlet fever can be conveyed to others for a period of six weeks.

Adhesions

What are adhesions and how can they be cured?" another reader asks.

Adhesions, are in most instances, a product of civilization rather than an act of nature. They occur whenever two serous membranes of the body, which are ordinarily in direct apposition, are the seat of inflammation or irritation. The commonest places for them are in the chest after pleurisy and in the abdomen after an operation. In ordinary conversation when a person says "adhesion" he usually means in the abdomen between loops of the intestine or between the intestine and the peritoneum. Of course, natural inflammation will create a favorable site for an adhesion but in the great majority of cases, they are due to operation.

A great fuss used to be made about adhesions, and it was a favorite diagnosis to say that any pain after an operation was due to adhesions. If the surgeon did not know anything to say, he blamed it on the adhesions. The modern surgeon has learned better. Most adhesions do no harm and are usually not the cause of symptoms. So far as treatments are concerned, they are very difficult because, of course, as soon as you go into the abdomen to break up adhesions, more adhesions form. It is like the labor of Hercules where he cleaned the Augean stable and every time he pitched a load of filth out the window, more came in at the other windows.

In any case, adhesions, in the course of time, tend to disappear and the best treatment is time.

Questions and Answers

E. C. M., Vermillion, Ohio:—"What would cause the tongue to crack? My tongue is cracked down the middle and gets red spots with white edges around them."

Answer — Possibly anemia: sometimes Vitamin B deficiency. The most important indication is for an examination of the blood to see if anemia is present.

L. L.:—"I eat tea leaves as I drink tea. Some say it is bad for my nerves; some that it does no harm at all. I eat a lot of them."

Answer — Evidently you know the answer yourself. You just want somebody to tell you this does no harm. You know it does make you nervous and that you eat too many of them.

L. L. — "Are benzedrine sulphate tablets effective in increasing weight?"

Answer — No, they have no direct action on weight at all. They increase activity and in that way tend indirectly to reduce weight.

Opium Smuggling On the Decline

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—The war has eliminated practically the entire flow of smuggled dope to America's inland cities, says Roy Bridges, federal narcotics officer in Oklahoma.

"What little opium that gets in is consumed in seaport towns and doesn't find its way to the interior," Bridges says. The war has so reduced ocean travel that smuggling of dope virtually has ceased.

If you're approaching womanhood or in your early 20's and suffer pain of irregular periods, if at such times you get weak, blue, cranky, nervous, with an uncomfortable bloated feeling, dark circles under eyes—due to this cause—try famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Pinkham's Compound is one of the MOST EFFECTIVE women's medicines made to relieve pain and distress of weak, nervous feelings due to functional periodic complaints. Beneficial for older women, too, for this purpose!

WAR RELIEF LEADER

Mrs. Leslie F. Benson

Mrs. Leslie F. Benson, vice chairman of the British war relief, arrives at New York from Europe, en route to Washington on "official business." She asked newsmen to convey to British relief workers in the United States thanks for all Britain for their efforts.

That Loud Noise Bother You!

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP)—Maybe you don't think you can stand any more of the noise next door that riveting or those horrible auto horns in the night. Science also wonders if you can.

Dr. R. K. Bernhard, head of the engineering department of Pennsylvania State college, says it will take both psychologists and engineers to figure out how much noise and mechanical vibration a person can take. How much noise the human body can stand without being harmed is a mystery, he says.

Calling All Grandfathers!

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Who is the champion grandfather in the United States?

T. R. Fowler of Colorado Springs asked the question and he's trying to find the answer.

He's challenged "any white man who has married only once" to dispute his own claim to the title.

Fowler, now 84 years old, has 82 direct descendants. He is the father of 12 children; has 52 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren. All but two are living.

Gardening Also Begins at Home

WALTERS, Okla. (AP)—A group of business men pooled their labor and cleaned the fairways, smoothed the greens and otherwise improved the local golf course. The next day their wives began prodding them to spade flower gardens, rake the lawns and tidy up their own home lots!

Liquor 'Goes Native'

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP)—The idea that demoralized shipping in wartime might enforce something akin to prohibition on bibulous Tahiti seems ill-founded. Shipments of scotch and other imported liquors are rare, but American capital is distilling a highly potent drink from pineapples, which has been christened "vanana."

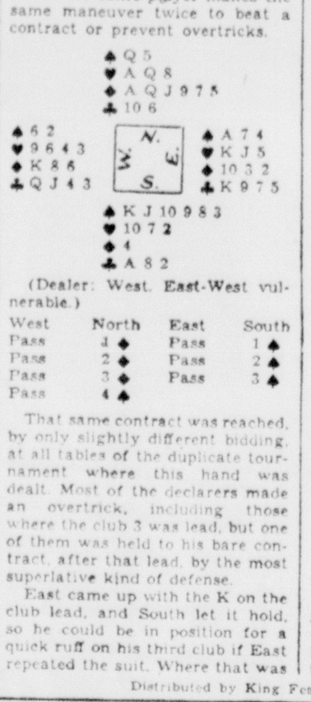
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

BRILLIANCY ON DEFENSE

AMONG THE rarest jewels in all of bridge is beautiful defensive play which can be recognized as such. One of the neatest moves to beat an opponent's contract is the Deschapelles Coup, whereby a player deliberately sacrifices a high card in order to knock out an entry—using up a high card so placed that it seemed otherwise to be a trick winner ultimately. But one of the rarest of the rare is a double Deschapelles Coup, in which the same player makes the same maneuver twice to beat a contract or prevent overtricks.



(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	2 ♦	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♦	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠

That same contract was reached, by only slightly different bidding, at all tables of the duplicate tournament where this hand was dealt. Most of the declarers made an overtrick, including those where the club 3 was lead, but one of them was held to his bare contract, after that lead, by the most superlative kind of defense.

East came up with the K on the club lead, and South let it hold, so he could be in position for a quick ruff on his third club if East repeated the suit. Where that was done, South won with the A, but then worked the diamond finesse, played the diamond A for a heart discard, ruffed a diamond with his spade 8, ruffed the club 8 with the Q and led the spade 5 from dummy. With the diamonds now set up and hearts for entries, it made no difference what East did. The contract was safe, plus an overtrick.

East's brilliant work, at another table, came right upon his winning that first trick with the club K. He immediately led the heart J to the Q to knock out entries. South entered his own hand with the spade 5 to the J, finessed the diamond Q, laid down the diamond A, ruffed a diamond to set up the suit, then led the spade K. East took this with his A and led back his heart K—second Deschapelles Coup of the hand. This took the heart A out of dummy, while East still had his trump 7 to block the run of the suit, so South never was able to discard his last club. He therefore lost two tricks in clubs and one in spades, and barely made his contract.

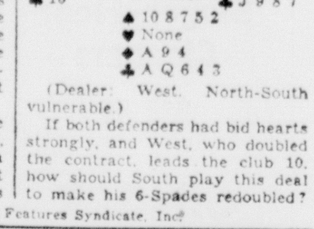
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

If both defenders had bid hearts strongly, and West, who doubled the contract, leads the club 10, how should South play this deal to make his 6-Spades redoubled?

after a cold
then what

DOCTORS stress remaining in bed until the body temperature is normal. Sound advice.

You know how weak you feel after a cold. Colds play havoc in weakening the body. The story is well told in the blood picture. It is important to build back body strength right away to carry the load of work, worries, and loss of sleep. A weakened body may be more susceptible to relapse or long drawn out recovery.

So reason sensibly and take the choice of millions by immediately starting on a course of S.S.S. Tonic—taken three times a day immediately before meals. In the absence of a focal infection or organic disease, you should note improvement in the way you feel and look within the first 10 days. The confidence of millions over many years is the best testimonial of this product.

An experience with S.S.S Tonic will cause you to say to your friends, S.S.S. made me "feel and look like myself again."

Churchill's Secretary Tells All About Him---He Toils and Sweats over Those Speeches

By JOHN SELBY
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK, April 11—Those famous Churchillisms like "Blood and toil, tears and sweat" do not fly hot like sparks from the grindstone, says Miss Phyllis Moir. They are the result of constant editing, innumerable revisions.

Miss Moir was Winston Churchill's secretary for a time, and he remains as much her hero as he was in her English schoolgirl days.

She tells the human side of the prime minister in a short book she calls "I Was Winston Churchill's Private Secretary." She was one of a secretarial group—even when he was out of the government he often kept three or four secretaries working at top speed. Her book is published today.

A number of things came out of her first day on the job. One was Churchill's habit of storming into a hotel suite "calling loudly for his mail, his secretary and a Scotch and soda."

He Has a Lisp

Another was the Churchillian lisp. "This was the first time I noticed his curious habit of whispering each phrase to himself before he says it aloud," Miss Moir relates. "I also discovered to my horror that he had a very marked lisp which made certain words impossible to understand. When at last he paused for breath I asked veery timidly if he would repeat these words for me. All I got was an impatient growl." Thereafter I thought it safer to use my imagination."

Once, Miss Moir recalls, she lisped out "In my long career of public exploitation," when the word should have been "exposition."

"'Surely, Miss Moir,' he said with a chuckle as he read over the manuscript, 'you're being a little unjust to me.'"

Churchill never walks, Miss Moir explains; he canters. Still, he is never on time for an appointment. Once he kept the Prince of Wales waiting for 50 minutes.

When he was a young man, Diana Cl[illegible] he had a terrific crush on Ethel Barry[illegible] and went every night for s[illegible] to Claridges just to watch her.

He has a habit of dictating from the bathtub, with his secretary just outside the door.

Nowadays, according to Miss Moir, Churchill is not permitted to sleep at No. 10 Downing street,

Churchill has worn the same greenish-black overcoat with astrakhan collar for 30 years, his ex-secretary says. "Churchill wears white silk shirts. . . . he invariably wears bow ties, usually of a polka-dot pattern."

but arrives there at 7:30 in the morning, at once undresses (he wears cream-colored silk pajamas) and gets into bed. Then he has breakfast, reads the papers carefully, then dictates until he is forced to dress for the cabinet meeting at 11:30.

His Hobby Is Painting

"In peacetime Mr. Churchill used to soften the transition from pajamas to street clothes by dashing around in shorts (he favors pink ones) and undershirt and a bright red cummerbund while I trotted behind him from room to room with a pad and pencil trying to keep pace with the torrential flow of words," Miss Moir adds.

The prime minister likes to paint. He is theater-mad, preferring musical shows and comedies. His memory is encyclopedic—once at Gettysburg he infuriated the guide by correcting him repeatedly. And once he telephoned his English architect from Cincinnati because he fell in love with a colored bathroom in his hotel suite, and wanted one like it.

Next to painting is his hobby of bricklaying. His favorite sport is riding, his preferred game backgammon, and he likes to watch tennis and to cook. To write, also. According to Miss Moir, his writings have brought him about $100,000 annually for many years.

The prime minister has "a knack for looking crumpled," Miss Moir writes, although his suits are pressed every day. "Hats . . . thrust carelessly onto his large head assume an odd chimney-pot appearance, but come from the best hatter in London."

Claims for Unemployment Benefits Mount as Coal Shutdown Continues

Relief Applications Also Soar in West Virginia Mine Fields

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 10 (AP)—The coal mine shutdown, which may continue indefinitely in Southern West Virginia, has been an "important factor" in bringing unemployment compensation applications to 32,369 in the first ten days of April, officials said today.

Miners are filing their claims by the thousands, although there has been no ruling as yet on whether they will be paid jobless benefits.

At the same time, relief applications in the coal fields also mounted.

1,500 Seek Relief in Logan

From Logan county came a report of 1,500 applications for commodities, while at Beckley, Director E. M. Worrell of the Raleigh County Public Assistance Department estimated that 400 applications for such relief had been received.

Worrell said the applications would be considered on the basis of their individual merit.

The same view was expressed earlier in the week by Director Raymond Kenny of the State Department of Public Assistance.

Approximately 7,000 miners in the populous coal producing county of McDowell registered for jobless benefits, and another 600 were reported on the relief rolls for commodity distribution.

Officials said the families of the 600 miners receiving commodities were those ineligible to obtain scrip from the company commissaries.

Mingo county officials reported 2,000 requests for unemployment compensation, and approximately sixteen applications for commodities.

No Change in Law

Officials of the unemployment compensation department have said informally that no change was enacted by the 1941 legislature which would have a bearing on the current applications.

The same sources have further said that a decision on the present claims might await an opinion by the state supreme court, which has before it an appeal of miners who were denied jobless benefits during the six-weeks shutdown of 1939.

Meanwhile, applications for both jobless benefits and relief were far heavier in the southern section of the state than in the Northern, where some coal producers have indicated they would reopen their mines on the basis of any agreement reached in New York.

Southern operators, on the other hand, insist upon preserving a differential under which they pay a daily wage forty cents less than the northern scale.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK By R. J. SCOTT

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Break Is Advised

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My relationship with a certain woman has gone on for six years. She has ruined my life and become a millstone around my neck. I was engaged to a lovely girl until this married woman got a diabolical hold over me. After my engagement was broken, this woman went to Reno to get a divorce, with the idea of marrying me.

While in Reno she met a man who had more money and better wordly position than I. She discarded me for him. He had no intention of marrying her, though she traveled with him, even going to Europe as his wife. When they'd quarrel she'd come back to me, begging for money. I gave her all my savings.

The rich man dropped her and she came back to me. I seem to have no power to fight against this woman's deadly influence. Even now she is dominating my life though I hate her. Do you think I should consult a psychiatrist?

SOFT.

When a person is in the position in which you find yourself, he seems powerless to fight against the destroying force which has him in its grip. The plan of going to a psychiatrist is excellent but you want to be sure of the integrity of the practitioner you employ.

I daresay your case is following the usual pattern. You probably have little contact with the outer world except through this woman, which is the worst thing possible. At all costs, try to make some new contacts or revive old ones.

Doesn't Love Husband

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm a very unhappy wife. I have two boys, ages 21 and 14. I'm in love with another man, but can't make up my mind to divorce my husband because of the boys. The man I love says he would be good to the boys if I want to bring them with me, but I know my husband is very found of them and is good to them too. I haven't the heart to take them away from him.

I met this other man while my husband and I were separated, but I gave him up and went back while the other man left town. He still writes to me, waiting for me to make up my mind to divorce my husband and marry him. He is four years older than I am and has a good job. He has always been sweet and kind to me.

It seems as if I can't stand this life much longer, if there isn't a change. My husband doesn't want me to go anywhere because he's afraid I'll meet this man, not knowing he's out of town.

UNDECIDED WIFE.

It's a question, if you broke up your home, divorced your husband and marrier this other man, whether you'd be as happy as you imagine. It's the far hills that always look greener, and domestic upheavals in middle age, which bring unhappiness to others, seldom bring happiness to those who incite them.

You tell me your boys love their father and he loves them. There should be some very good reason for breaking such bonds. You haven't told me the cause of your former separation from your husband—was it on your account or his? If you desired that separation, it is more than likely that he will want to keep his sons with him. When the glamour has worn off this new marriage, how will these various changes affect you? In the final analysis, you will have to make and abide by your own decision. I can only tell you that, to me, this new set-up does not appear to promise much happiness.

Stocks Stage Feeble Rally, but Gains Are Cancelled or Reduced

Trading Is Dull and Featured by Some Short Covering

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, April 10 (AP)—Leading stocks put a feeble foot forward in today's early market proceedings but initial fractional rallies were reduced or cancelled in many cases at the finish.

Mild recovery symptoms were displayed by some steels and rails in the forenoon. Dealings were so slow, however, that follow-through power was lacking in most cases.

A little nibbling was attributed to short covering for protection over tomorrow's Good Friday recess and meager purchasing came in on the theory the list had been oversold despite adverse implications of the Balkan conflict.

Transfers amounted to 357,230 shares against 584,020 yesterday.

U. S. Steel ended up ¼ of a point as the company announced March shipments of finished products established a new peak. Bethlehem, though, was off ⅛ and Youngstown Sheet a full point.

Emerging behind minus signs were Chrysler, American Smelting, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Eastman Kodak, du Pont, U. S. Gypsum, American Telephone, Western Union, Consolidated Edison and International Harvester.

Moderately ahead were Sears Roebuck, Goodyear, Woolworth, Glenn Martin, Kennecott, Cerro De Pasco, Continental Baking "A", Texas Corporation and Westinghouse.

In a ragged Curb Aluminum of America retreated 1⅛ and lesser recessions were posted for Gulf Oil, American Gas, Brewster Aero and Lake Shore. Improved were American Cyanamid "B", Creole Petroleum, Pantepec, Pennroad and Phoenix Securities. The turnover here was around 66,000 shares versus 86,000 Wednesday.

DRUNK AGAIN, EH, HENRY?

Most every one has seen the spectacle of a sick man on the street mistaken for one being drunk. Mr. Thomas Tice, 920 Corbett St., Hagerstown, Md., says: "I was constipated to such an extent that at times the blood would rush to my head. I'd get bilious and dizzy and often staggered on the street as if I had been drinking. World's Tonic brought me speedy constipation relief and the dizzy spells gradually stopped altogether." If your kidneys are letting you down try World's Tonic, with alkalines. Used for many ailments by thousands of families for over twenty years. Gloria Swanson May Return for Another Picture

Star of Former Years Expects To Play in One More Film

By HUBBARD KEAVY

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., April 10 (AP)—The only thing that has kept Gloria Swanson off the screen is the lack of a good role. She says so herself.

The glamorous Gloria, who reached the peak of her movie career fifteen years ago, said today she has found a part she believes is a good one. It is that of a middle-aged actress who wants to quit the stage, marry and settle down. "Father takes a wife" is the title; Adolphe Menjou is father.

"She's a great deal like me," Swanson admitted. Swanson is in her early 40s also, says she always has wanted to settle down, play bridge, get acquainted with her children. She didn't mention marrying again; her ex-husbands, incidentally, number four.

"I made my last picture six years ago; I mean I thought it was my last," she explained. "I could have been back here, but I never saw a part that I thought I could get my teeth into."

Swanson retired about ten years ago, after producing several of her own pictures. There have been reports that those pictures cost her the fortune she began accumulating when she was a Sennett comedienne and Mrs. Wallace Berry. Four years ago, she started a business in New York to buy and manufacture anything from frying pans to gun sights. She said today that at least it is a going concern.

"Fire horse stuff now that I've smelled grease paint again?" she laughed at that. "Of course not. I've got a good business and I've got a family. (Michele is nine and Joseph is seventeen) I've got what I've always wanted—why give it up now?

"Maybe an occasional picture, if they're good. But pictures again all the time. I should say not. In Hollywood you don't even have time to complete sentences. And I like to talk."

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A Navy bride thinks it's up to someone in authority to see that she and her husband have their delayed honeymoon at long last. To strengthen her case, she cites the case of "Laddie." You remember—Laddie was a ten-year-old Airedale who pined away when his master, Private Everett Scott, went from Kansas to Cape Ord, California. Laddie refused food and drink till some kind-hearted official had him transported by plane to Camp Ord.

Mrs. Clover Lambert, a bride pining for her long-delayed honeymoon, addressed her plea from her Chula Vista home, saying, "Laddie was a one-man dog, and everybody realized there was only one place for a dog of that type—with his master.

"Now I happen to be a one-man woman and I long to rejoin my husband in Manila. We were married in July, 1939. Joe got leave for a honeymoon and after five days he was ordered to Seattle.

Wives Ordered Home

"Immediately after he returned he was ordered to Honolulu in a mass flight. I rejoined him in Waikiki, where we decided that we'd take the minister's word literally and cleave unto each other until death did us part. Out of the blue came orders for a mass flight to Manila. The news was devastating because all wives got orders to return to the mainland for the duration."

Mrs. Lambert hopes that her plea may hit the heart-strings of some kindly disposed army official who is being ordered to Manila. The bride says she will take up very little room because she is less than five feet tall, weighs little, and is willing to fast in order to weigh less.

She says also, "I'd much rather

Carmen Miranda Stars In Strand Feature

With the United States and South American countries shaking hands over conference tables and otherwise making gestures of good-will, it was inevitable that fashion should get the nod from such exchanges and that the colorful, exotic costumes from these lands would be influencing North American fashions.

Giving the final impetus to this trend is the appearance of the "Brazilian Bombshell," Carmen Miranda in "That Night In Rio," wearing a series of gorgeous South American costumes, bound to leave their mark on 1941 fashions. Alice Faye and Don Ameche are starred with Carmen in the Twentieth Century-Fox Technicolor production, which opened yesterday at the Strand theater.

Carmen is already credited with having established the vogue for exotic and extravagant turbans, the brilliant and intricately draped affairs that New York women so eagerly sought after her first appearance in that city.

Boys Town Recreated For Maryland Film

Father Edward J. Flanagan's famous Nebraska Boys Town was so minutely recreated for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Men of Boys Town" that it cannot be distinguished on the screen from the original.

Again starring Spencer Tracy in his Academy Award characterization of Father Flanagan, and Mickey Rooney as Whitey Marsh, mayor of Boys Town, the new film, which is now showing at the Maryland theater, shows the remarkable changes that have taken place at Father Flanagan's Home since "Boys Town" was filmed three years ago.

Additions include a church, recently dedicated, a few dining room and dormitories. A camera crew was sent to Boys Town to film backgrounds. Hundreds of still photographs were made, showing in detail the various buildings. From these photographs the studio art department rebuilt Boys Town on the lot.

Bette Davis Film Coming to Liberty

The love story of a magnificent cheat will be the feature attraction at the Liberty theater starting tomorrow. Bette Davis, the screen's first lady of drama, and George Brent are co-starred, and the title is "The Great Lie."

"The Great Lie" is a modern love story. "Maggie," the character Miss Davis portrays, is a normal American girl, very much in love and willing to fight all odds to keep the man she loves. There isn't a trace of neurosis or of meanness about her, and she is naturally a gay and happy person, a wealthy girl who chooses to lead a simple, country life on her farm in Maryland.

All the feminine skullduggery which enters the plot is carried on by Mary Astor, Bette's rival for Brent's love in the story. Miss Astor portrays a very sophisticated woman of the world, a concert pianist who also rides the top crest of cafe society. Brent plays an aviator and explorer, in love with Bette, but attracted to Mary during his inebriated moments.

'Housekeeper's Daughter' On Embassy Screen

Hal Roach's "The Housekeeper's Daughter" opens today at the Embassy theater. The film production, a gay comedy romance based on the best-selling novel by Donald Henderson Clarke, stars brunette-tressed Joan Bennett as the heroine of the story, with Adolphe Menjou and John Hubbard as her two heroes.

"The Housekeeper's Daughter" is a story of a young lady, who quits the underworld after being disillusioned with her boy friend, and happens to become involved in the lives of five other men — among them, the wealthy scion of a socially prominent family, two zany newspapermen, a psychopathic murderer and an unorthodox gangster. Most of the story is unfolded in the swanky town house of the Randalls, while they are summering at a fashionable summer resort, and most of the action concerns a baffling murder which is solved after some of the screwiest clues are brought to the fore, not to omit a fireworks display which pinch-hits for an honest-to-goodness bombing.

Boris Karloff Stars In Horror Picture

Is old age a disease? Will man ever discover how to prevent death? Somewhere in the realm of science will an actual fountain of youth be found?

These questions furnish the basis for the Columbia thriller, "Before I Hang," opening today at the Garden theater. Starring Boris Karloff, king of horror, in the most terifying role of his career, the picture tells the story of a brilliant scientist and his desperate search for the fearful formula of immortality. Advancing far beyond the monkey gland theories and other contemporary methods of prolonging life, Karloff in the role of the scientist, perfects a serum which restores youth to aging people.

"The Gay Cabellero," with Cesar Romero as the Cisco Kid is the co-feature.

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Distributed by Central Press Association)

GUARDING LILAC BUSHES

All too frequently gardeners neglect their lilac bushes, not realizing the damage that certain insects may do to them.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph one foe of lilac bushes to guard against is the oyster shell scale, so called because it resembles an oyster shell in shape. The scale is small, about 1-10 inch long, grayish-white in color and usually is found in masses along the lower branches of the innermost twigs.

These scales suck the life juices of the lilac, thereby draining it of vitality. Unless checked, oyster shell scale will finally kill the shrub.

Oyster shell scale can be controlled by spraying with a dormant oil spray in April or with nicotine sulphate when the young scales hatch out, which is from the middle of May through June and before their hard shells are formed.

Tuzigoot National Monument, in Arizona, recently added to the federal park system, contains prehistoric ruins of great archeological interest and educational value.

SALLY'S SALLIES

The trouble with being a star is that everything you buy is sky-high, too.

When your bowels and kidneys fail to perform their work correctly your system cannot throw off the waste materials and digestion often becomes deranged—you lose energy and activity. Perhaps before you realize it you're losing your appeal and getting objectionably fat.

Take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of water every morning half an hour before breakfast, cut out pastry, fatty meats—and go light on white bread, potatoes, butter and cream. In three weeks get on the scales and see how many pounds of fat have vanished; notice also that you have gained in energy—your skin seems clearer and eyes brighter—you feel younger in body and keener in mind.

Get a bottle of Kruschen Salts (a famous English formula) plain or new effervescent—sparkling—pleasant, at Cumberland Drug Co. and leading druggists everywhere; lasts 4 weeks and is inexpensive. Money back if not fully satisfied.

Baseball Writers Pick Yanks To Cop Flag

New York Noses Out Cleveland By Single Point

Indians Get More First Place Votes but Yanks Win on Points

NEW YORK, April 10 (AP)—Eighty-three sports writers can't be wrong, but more than half of them are going to be when the 1941 American League race has been completed. No matter which team wins, the voters for that team in the Associated Press poll among sports scribes in Major League cities will be outnumbered by those who picked some other team to come home first.

Yanks Slight Favorite

In contrast to last year, when 66 of 77 voters picked the Yankees, this year there is a virtual deadlock between the Yanks and the Cleveland Indians. Only four voters failed to name one or the other for first place.

The Indians drew one more first-place vote than the Yankees—40 to 39, but on a point basis, based on eight points for first, seven for second, etc., the Yankees edged out the Tribe, 612 to 611.

The Champion Detroit Tigers drew only two first-place votes, and the Chicago White Sox and the—surprise—St. Louis Browns, one each.

The Yankees were picked no lower than third in any selection. The Indians were picked for fourth by one voter, the others conceding the Tribe would finish 1-2-3. Detroit, however, was picked for the first six places, with twenty scribes shoving the champions down to fourth.

The Boston Red Sox boom apparently has faded, as they are moved out of the first division in favor of the White Sox. One optimist picked Boston for second, but most of the votes were for fourth place on down through seventh.

A's Picked for Eighth

The Philadelphia Athletics were rated no better than sixth by any voter, while the Washington Senators, although polling more last-place votes than any other club, were rated as high as fourth by at least one expert.

Simmered down, the vote reveals that the scribes vision a two-club race, with the other six teams in a free-for-all for what's left.

The point total of the clubs:

New York, 612; Cleveland, 611; Detroit, 583; Chicago, 377; Boston, 363; St. Louis, 268; Washington, 138; Philadelphia, 136.

Sentinels Battle Alumni Grid Team To Scoreless Tie

Fort Hill Concludes Spring Schedule of Practice Games

Concluding its schedule of spring practice games, Fort Hill high schools' football team battled the Alumni-1940 Senior combination to a scoreless tie yesterday afternoon at the Fort Hill stadium practice field.

It was the third game played this spring by the Sentinels, the opener having resulted in a 2-0 triumph for an eleven composed of 1940 players while the Scarletand White bagged the second contest, 6 to 0.

Alumni Threatens

In yesterday's contest, the Alumni threatened late in the second period when a series of off-tackle plays in which Dean and Hare carried the ball and Davis made some nice gains through the line, advanced the pigskin to the four-yard stripe, but there Coach Long's outfit held and kicked out of danger.

A twenty-five yard run by Wade placed the ball on the Alumni 15-yard marker late in the third period but this threat was short-lived when Evans fumbled and the Alumni recovered.

Gene McGill and Eddie Carroll played nice defensive games for the Alumni, the former knocking down two Fort Hill passes on the twenty-yard line.

Kenny Bridge's kicking, Lew Pellerzi's ground-gaining, Minnick's on offense and the defense work of Carl Lapp, Robert Poling and Roger Twigg were outstanding for the school eleven. Jim Corrick, at the quarterback post, ran the team well.

The lineups were as follows:

Fort Hill

Seniors Defeat Allegany High Football Team

Score 19 to 14 Victory as Spring Training Comes to a Close

A team composed of eight Allegany seniors and two LaSalle students defeated next fall's Allegany high school football team 19 to 14 in a practice game yesterday marking the close of the spring training session.

The game was close and interesting from start to finish with the Seniors scoring first in the second quarter on a fake reverse by Yoder, Senior fullback, which was good for forty-three yards. Miller place kicked the extra point making the score 7 to 0 for the Seniors.

Both Score in Second

Allegany came right back in the same quarter and scored on a twenty yard pass, Athey to Wolford, after which Wolford ran the remaining fifteen yards to score. Abbott plunged over for the extra point making the score 7-7 at the end of the half.

The high school team went into the lead by scoring in the third quarter on a pass from Athey to Kellough which was good for thirty-five yards. Abbott again plunged over for the extra point, giving the high school regulars a 14 to 7 lead.

Late in the fourth quarter, Powell blocked Athey's punt on the fifteen yard line and Yoder picked the ball up and ran for a touchdown. Yoder was stopped in trying to plunge over for the extra point, making the score 14 to 13 in favor of the high school.

Ball Well Pleased

With less than a half a minute to play Chandlee passed 30 yards to Miller who raced 20 yards for a touchdown. Loder was again stopped in the try for the extra point making the final score 19 to 14 in favor of the Seniors.

Coach Herman Bell of Allegany said last night he was well pleased with the play of his team considering the fact that the team had only practiced about two weeks and a half and that several changes in the Allegany offense were made in spring training.

Ball used twenty-three players but the starting line up played most of the game. Among the outstanding substitutes was McMahon who showed up well at half-back. Robertson at guard was the only substitute used by the Seniors.

The lineups:

Reagan, Penn Star, Enlists

PHILADELPHIA, April 10 (AP) — Frank Reagan, Penn's great football and baseball player, probably kissed $7,500 goodbye yesterday when he enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps reserves.

Definitely big league timber as a catcher, he was reported to have been offered that amount as a bonus for signing with at least two major league outfits. The Phillies were said to be one of them.

But Frank passed up a big league career to serve Uncle Sam and will enter the Marine basic school at the Navy Yard here in October for training. He already mailed in his draft questionnaire and figured he'd be called up in July.

800 Fans See Boxing Show At Keyser

First Round Knockout Features; Fitzpatrick Wins by Decision

KEYSER, W. Va., April 10 — Joe Petro, 123 pound Golden Glove bantam champion of Washington, D. C., knocked out Jimmy Fraser of Keyser in one minute and thirty seconds of the first round here tonight in the amateur boxing show sponsored by the Keyser Police Boys' Club which was held in the K. of P. armory with 800 fans present.

In the only technical k. o. of the card, "Kayo" Mills of Keyser won over Buddy Clark, of Cumberland in 1:52 of the second round. Clark went down for the count of two and again for eight and the referee stopped the fight.

In the feature attraction Hilton "Tarzan" Fitzpatrick, of Romney, W. Va., W. Va., Golden Glove middleweight champ (159) won a decision over Charles Malmone, 160 pound Washington, D. C., slugger who last year copped the District of Columbia A. A. U. middleweight title.

Malmone almost had Fitzpatrick out in the fifth and final round but he couldn't overcome the margin the Romney boy piled up in the first four rounds.

Another good fight was that between Joe McGreevy, (133) of Piedmont who gained the decision over Billy Scott (134) Golden Glove champion of Washington D. C. This was one of the best bouts of the night.

The program was one of the best held in Keyser in several years. Fifty or seventy-five Cumberland fans were on hand when Eugene Dorsey and Donald Pugh of Keyser meet in a non-decision exhibition of three one minute rounds.

Dr. William F. McFarland, general chairman of the Keyser Boys' Club, last night praised the sportsmanship of the Washington boys. In a telephone conversation with the News he said "the sportsmanship of the four Washington boxers was the best I have ever seen in the years I have been connected with boxing".

Other results:

Irving Clark (133) won decision over Don Basilio 140 of Cumberland.

Ray Bollenger (120) of the Burley A. C. club won decision over Gene Basilio (119) of the Cumberland Police Boys' Club.

Chick Chamberlain (152) of Cumberland gained the decision over Denny Malone (153) of Keyser.

"Fox" Ravenscroft (152) of Keyser won a decision over Ken Burkett (154) of Hyndman.

Buddy Lewis Will Go To Army in May

GOLDSBORO, N. C., April 10 (AP)—Buddy Lewis, third baseman and cleanup batter for the Washington Senators, disclosed tonight he probably would be inducted into the army in a month.

Lewis notified Manager Bucky Harris that his draft board at Belmont, N. C., had indicated he would be called up "about May 10". Lewis said the board "just smiled" when he asked for a four-month deferment to enable him to earn most of his 1941 baseball salary.

Reds Take Final Game from the Red Sox

Boston Secures Only Three Hits Off of Derringer

Jim Turner Also Hurls Well in the Last Four Innings

CINCINNATI, April 10. (AP)—Backing up superb hurling by Paul Derringer and Jim Turner with devastating power at the plate, Cincinnati's World Champion Reds won 5 to 2 from Boston's Red Sox today to close the club's pre-season series with an 8-7 advantage.

Big Paul, hinted starter in next Tuesday's opener, appeared in July form in yielding three hits over his five-frame route.

Durable Mike Ryba scattered five of his nine hits effectively and until the sixth, the Reds were able to do business only in the third when Eddie Joost doubled and scored on Jim Gleeson's single. In the sixth successive doubles by Bill Werber and Frank McCormick, and Ernie Lombardi's single netted two.

Ryba gave way to Herb Hash in the seventh and in the eighth, with one gone, successive singles by McCormick, Lombardi, Jim Ripple, Craft—his third safety of the day—and Pep Young added another brace for the champs.

Phils Trim Senators

GOLDSBORO, N. C., April 10 (AP)—The Phillies were slow starting today, but they finished like a ball of fire in the last three innings to down the Washington Senators 7 to 4.

Dutch Leonard had the National Leaguers baffled clear up to the seventh inning, and Case gave him a two-run advantage with a homer and a run-producing single in the first and second frames, respectively.

Behind four to one in the seventh, the Phils' bats came to life and with Nagel and Benjamin clouting four-base hits, and Etten hitting a double, the Nationals gathered two runs in each of the last three frames.

Hubbell-Moore Star

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 10 (AP)—Carl Hubbell and Joe Moore, two veterans who had been relegated to inconspicuous places in the 1941 outlook of the New York Giants, earned a second glance today by shutting out the Cleveland Indians 2 to 0.

Hubbell wafted his screwball past the Indians for seven innings, fanning five and allowing only four scattered hits. Only two men reached second. Moore drove in both the Giants' runs, first with a long fly in the second inning and later with a triple in the ninth.

Reiser Is Hurt

WILMINGTON, Del., April 10 (AP)—Pete Reiser, hard-hitting young outfielder of the Brooklyn Dodgers, pulled a muscle in his back in the eighth inning today as the Dodgers beat the New York Yankees 3 to 2.

A physician said Reiser suffered only a wrenched muscle, but that he would need to rest three or four days. The injury came within twenty-four hours after Peewee Reese, Brooklyn's star shortstop, had hurt his heel in an exhibition at Baltimore.

The triumph today was the Dodgers eleventh straight and fourth in a row over the Yankees.

Pirates Defeat A's

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., April 10. (AP)—A ringing double by rookie Edward Perry Stewart in the last of the ninth with two men out scored Bob Elliott today with the run which gave Pittsburgh its second straight victory over the Philadelphia Athletics 10 to 9.

The game was a see-saw affair with Maurice Van Robays delivering two home runs for the Pirates and Bob Johnson two for the A's, making three for him in two days.

Dean Is Hit Hard

WICHITA, Kan., April 10. (AP)—Chicago's White Sox got to Dizzy Dean for five hits, five walks and six runs in two innings today and then went on to wallop the Cubs, 18 to 13, in another of their free-hitting exhibitions.

Joe Kuhel got two homers for the Sox today and Dom Dallessandro two for the Cubs. Lou Novikoff also connected for the National Leaguers.

Niggeling Hurls Well

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 10 (AP)—Johnny Niggeling allowed one hit in five innings and Bob Harris one in four as St. Louis' Browns defeated St. Joseph of the Western Association 8 to 0 today.

Chet Laabs hit a home run with two on in the eighth.

Bees Win Easily

EVANSVILLE, Ind., April 10 (AP)—The Boston Bees walloped their Evansville farm team, 18-6, today in a twenty-two hit outburst which marked the close of the Bees' pre-season exhibitions, except for a two-game intra-city series with the Boston Red Sox this week end.

Lanier Hurls Well

TULSA, Okla., April 10. (AP)—Max Lanier held Tulsa to four scattered hits today as the St. Louis Cardinals scored a 5-0 shutout over the Texas Leaguers in an exhibition game.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, April 10 — (The Special News Service) — After going about tapping the various National League pennant contenders and listening carefully, this infallible judge of baseball teams and watermelons (well, watermelons anyway) believes the Cincinnati Reds are the solid team, and we're again picking them to come home in front.

Not as far in front as last year. In fact, they will have to get their share of the breaks to be in front of all, but figuring that a team is just as good as its pitching they should make it in a close finish, for when it comes to pitching they have nothing else but.

Any maybe little else but, as for sheer power they can't match the unpredictable Brooklyn Dodgers or the up-and-coming St. Louis Cardinals.

Here's how we'd line them up for the finish of the 1941 campaign:

1—Cincinnati; 2—St. Louis; 3—Brooklyn; 4—Pittsburgh; 5—Chicago; 6—New York; 7—Boston; 8—Philadelphia.

The Reds aren't flashy. They aren't a blasting team. But they are solid from Warren Giles and Bill McKechnie on down. They figure to be as good, maybe slightly better with the addition of Jim Gleeson, than they were last year.

Had they just an ordinary pitching staff they would do well to finish in the first division. But their pitching staff is the best in either league, and there's the difference.

We were much impressed with the spirit and fire of the Cardinals this spring. They have so many good young rookie pitchers two or three should prove valuable. They have power, and the memory of how they came along after Billy Southworth took charge last year leaves they hunch they're a team to beat.

The Dodgers, who can tell? They may take it all, they may fall apart in the stretch. Right now they look great. Oodles of power, a good defense, although a little wobbly at second base. A couple of pitchers in Kirby Higbe and Whit Wyatt who look like many-game winners.

But from Larry MacPhail on down there is an element of uncertainty, of fiery personalities that might conflict to wreck a smooth-functioning machine. Aside from Higbe and Wyatt the pitching is uncertain. One thing is sure, if a weak spot develops MacPhail won't sit still and watch it. This may be Brooklyn's year, but we're waiting to be shown.

Pittsburgh takes fourth place over the Cubs by a flip of a coin. Frankie Frisch had the Pirates coming along well last year, although the pitching wasn't so much. The pitching still doesn't seem to be so much, but there seems to be enough speed and all-around strength otherwise to make the Bucs a good gamble for the first division.

Some critics think the Cubs may be the surprise team. They have a new manager in Jimmy Wilson, but otherwise there seems to be little change. In fact, the mound staff is almost identical to that which pitched the club to fifth place last year. It should at least do it again.

The Giants are a problem child. If the pitchers click, with the expected aid of Gabby Hartnett, and the injury jinx doesn't trail the veterans, particularly Mel Ott and Bill Jurges, the club might wind up in the first division. Also, it might wind up seventh if Bill Terry's luck of the last couple of years holds out.

The Bees came fast late last season. They still are a young club, but may cause a lot of trouble to the leaders.

The Phillies still are the Phillies.

Tropical Handicap Feature Is Won By Joe Schenck

Herbert Woolf's Horse Wins Last Big Race of Florida Season

MIAMI, Fla., April 10 (AP)—Herbert M. Woolf's Joe Schenck held his own through a stirring stretch duel today and won the $10,000 Added Tropical Handicap, last big horse race of the Florida season.

The favored Get Off, with top weight of 120 pounds, was nipped at the wire for the place by W. C. Stroube's Sirasla.

Little Kenny McCombs, newly signed to ride for Woolf's Woolford Farm string, gave Joe Schenck brilliant handling—enabling the bettors to collect to the tune of $20.30 for a $2 win ticket, $11 to place and $5.80 to show.

Sirasla paid off $23.10 and $10.90, while the cautious who planked down their bet on Get Off to show got back $4.40.

The winner's time of 1:42 3-5 for the mile and one-sixteenth was only one-fifth of a second off the Tropical Park record.

Get Off and Joe Schenck pounded toward the finish noses apart. One had to give way, and it was the favorite.

Sirasla, liking the fast going, closed with a rush to challenge Joe Schenck in the last strides.

Maryland Youth Is On Skeet Team

LORDSHIP, Conn.—Howard T. Ingels, Jr., of Centerville, Md., a member of the Yale skeet team, will be among the shooters participating in the Third Annual Intercollegiate Skeet Championships at the Remington Gun Club here, Saturday, April 19. Ingels is a member of Yale's first team, the Elis having two teams entered in the event.

The Championships consist of a 100 target individual and team contest. Last year Princeton's five-man team carried off top honors.

Other teams entered so far include two from West Point, one from Princeton and one from Dartmouth.

In the telegraphic event, in which teams unable to shoot on the grounds, shoulder to shoulder, wire their scores to the club, following their shoot. The University of Texas and Colorado School of Mines have entered.

Trinity College Wins From Western Maryland

WESTMINSTER, Md., April 10 (AP)—Trinity college of Hartford, Conn., defeated Western Maryland college in the opening baseball game of the season for the Green Terrors today, 10 to 3.

Western Maryland could do little with the pitching of Scully, making only three hits, while the visitors got ten off Lodge. Scully issued nine bases on balls, loading the bases several times, but bore down when the occasion demanded.

In the first seven innings, the Terrors got only one hit. Two of Western Maryland's three runs came in the ninth on a single, walk, and hit batter.

Score by innings:

TRINITY	000	001	111	10	10	1
WESTERN MD.	000	010	002	0	0	0	0	0	0	3

Scully and Viering; Lodge and Bricker.

Versatile

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Bob Dro doesn't care where he plays—so long as he plays. As a sophomore he played first base on Indiana University's baseball team. Last year as a junior Dro played the outfield. This year he shares the catching. He's a basketball guard in the winter.

Real Rookie

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—Virgil Trucks, young pitcher who spent the spring training period here with the Detroit Tigers, has never seen a major league baseball game.

All in all, it looks like a three club race, with the Reds, Cards and Dodgers slitting each other's throats. The other five teams, the Phillies excepted, all have a chance for the other first division berth, but we like their chances as listed above.

meet MR.....

Roberto Estalella

One of the several Cubans given trials by the Washington Nationals the last few years, Roberto Estallela, an outfielder, is being given a try by the St. Louis Browns, this season.

Estallela, a heavy hitter in the minors, was purchased from Minneapolis to which club Washington sent him after he had spent two seasons in the nation's capital.

Estallela's batting average last year was .341. He banged out thirty-six doubles, five triples and thirty-two home runs last season.

Fish and Game Students Get First Hand Study

COLLEGE STATION—Texas A. & M. students interested in fish and game conservation will have a chance to pursue that study in the field this summer.

The college's fish and game department is offering a six-week traveling course during the first six weeks of the summer session, starting June 9. Students will make a survey of birds, mammals and plants of selected sections of Mexico.

The basic idea is to instruct the students in methods of collecting field data and gathering information on wildlife conditions in an area where overhunting and overgrazing has permitted nearly primeval conditions to exist.

Salvation Army League Title To Be Played Tonight

The playoff to decide the championship of the Salvation Army Basketball League will take place tonight at 7 o'clock in the gym at the Army Red Shield Community center at 505 Virginia avenue. The league is composed of four teams.

At the close of the games plans will be made for organizing the Red Shield Softball League and Brig. B. L. Phillipson states that he is hopeful that six teams can be secured for the circuit.

William Baker and Louis Gormer, W.P.A. recreational workers will have charge of the softball league.

Golfing Family-- On Men's Side

ELMSFORD, N. Y. (AP) — The Turnesas are golf's largest family of stars. But, although the seven brothers are aces, the two girls — Rose and Mildred—have reportedly never swung a club. Turnesa, senior, is greens expert at Fairview club here, where brother Mike also is connected.

Doug and Phil are at Elmsford C. C. Frank is at Briarcliff, Joe is at Rockville Center and Jim has temporarily given up golf to join the army. Willie, the amateur and former national champion, works in Detroit.

Brothers Make Up Third Of Temple Ball Club

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Gotwals brothers may form one-third of the Temple University baseball team this spring.

Not only that, but the trio of sophomores who starred on the diamond at Northeast high school are likely to perform a brother act in the outfield, college officials announce.

They are Harold, 19, Earl, 20, and George, 21.

Harold played halfback on the varsity football squad last season and pushed leather as a 165-pound member of the boxing squad.

Red Rolfe Advised To Rest Sore Leg

WILMINGTON, Del., April 10 (AP)—Red Rolfe, veteran third baseman of the New York Yankees, who has been nursing a sore leg ever since the club left St. Petersburg, Fla., had the leg examined in Baltimore yesterday and was advised to rest until opening day. A doctor said nothing was seriously wrong and that diathermic treatments would put the leg back in shape.

Eastern Threat

DETROIT (AP)—An Easterner may win the Michigan Amateur golf championship. He's Willie Turnesa, former Holy Cross star, who is connected with a business firm here now. Turnesa won the National amateur championship in 1938.

Cherry Jam Wins Feature Race At Keeneland

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 10 (AP) — Mrs. Payne Whitney's Cherry Jam defeated Smacked by a Nose in the $2,500 Phoenix Handicap featuring the opening card of Keeneland's eleven-day spring meeting today after Whirlaway and Blue Pair scratched.

Parasang, the well-played favorite which carried top weight of 122 pounds, got away last but managed to outrun Unerring, One Witch and Bill Farnsworth to take third money.

Mrs. Whitney's horse was overlooked in the betting and returned $17, $8.20 and $4.40 across the board.

Cherry Jam, with a light impost of 111 pounds, set the crowd of approximately 7,500 in an uproar by running the six furlongs under Jockey Al Bodiou in 1:12 1-5, fastest time of the day at the distance.

Whirlaway and Blue Pair, both Derby candidates, were scratched forty-five minutes before the Phoenix so that they could run in the $1,500 A. J. Joyner Handicap tomorrow.

Bill Lee Fails To Reach Terms with Cubs

Refuses To Take $10,000 Salary Offer of Club

James Gallagher Says He Has Not Heard Anything from Leiber

By EARL HILLIGAN

CHICAGO, April 10 (AP) — The Chicago Cubs and two of their highest salaried stars tightened their battle lines today for what loomed as the most serious holdout "siege" in the club's history.

In a grim, strained atmosphere, Pitcher Bill Lee parted from James Gallagher, Cub general manager, after an hour's conference had failed to settle their salary differences. At the same time Gallagher said he had "heard nothing" from Hank Leiber, the big outfielder who has anchored himself at his ranch near Tucson, Ariz.

Lee Slumped Last Year

Lee, who slumped to a record of nine wins and seventeen defeats last season after winning twenty-two games in 1938 and nineteen in 1939, obviously was unhappy but determined as he left Gallagher.

"I started the discussion at $15,000," the tall hurler said. "But Gallagher said his offer was $10,000. Then I offered to pitch for $12,500 if assured I would get the difference between $12,500 and $15,000 if I had a good season. But Gallagher said $10,000. I can't pitch for that."

Asked whether he cared to comment, Gallagher said crisply, "I haven't anything to say." Later he said he would not ask Lee in for a second conference, although the pitcher said he planned to remain here for a few days.

Cubs Need Lee

Lee and Leiber have been holdouts forty-two days, dating back to the opening of training at Catalina island. The Cubs had offered Lee $12,500 — a cut of $5,000 from his 1940 salary — but cut it further to $10,000 when he failed to report at spring camp. Leiber, who hit .302 in 117 games last season—getting seventeen homers — has made no move to confer with Gallagher, who said today he "hadn't heard a thing" from the husky blond fly chaser. The Cubs and Pittsburgh open the season here Tuesday.

The Lee-Gallagher controversy apparently has reached an impasse, for the Cub general manager has the backing of owner P. K. Wrigley, who has let it be known Gallagher is in the driver's seat. The consensus seems to be that the Cubs could get along without Leiber but would be in a bad way without Lee, who in seven years with the club has won 115 games while losing eighty-seven.

Crystall Ball Says Indians and Cards Will Win Flag—If

NEW YORK, April 10 — Most managers state publicly that Cleveland will win the American League pennant. Most of them say privately they think the Yankees will cop. And all of them predict a dingdong three-team race in the National League. Reds, Dodgers and Cardinals.

That, roughly, is the color of the baseball panorama for 1941: two clubs in the American League, three in the National, and good races in both.

There are other possibilities, to be sure. Myself, I think the Boston Red Sox are a good sneak bet. Their pitching begins to look good, and pitching is all they need. The Cubs and the Bees in the National League have potentialities. They can be mediocre, or much better than that. And then, after all, the Detroit Tigers are champions, and champions must be beaten before they cease to be champions.

With all this in mind, and two bucks in my pocket, I went around the corner yesterday to the modish establishment of Uncle Andrew, the pawnbroker, where my crystal ball was in winter storage. A prophet is no good without his crystal ball, even if he pays his union dues.

The Cautious Uncle Andrew

Uncle Andrew was strumming "My Heart's in the Highlands" on a second-hand banjo. It is common knowledge that Uncle Andrew has no heart in the highlands or anywhere else, but leave us not quibble, mates. There he was, a-strumming, and when he had seen my two dollars, and counted each bill three times, he handed over the crystal ball.

"Ye'll be making a fool of yourself again, Laddie, I have no doot," said the lovable usurer.

That's a fine thing to say to a fearless and unimpeachable prognosticator who is about to pick the pennant races, club for club, exactly the way they will finish next October. Here they are. This is the absolute un-subdivided low-down, or your money back:

NATIONAL LEAGUE

St. Louis
Brooklyn
Cincinnati
Pittsburgh
Chicago
Boston
New York
Philadelphia

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Cleveland
Boston
New York
Chicago
Detroit
St. Louis

Indians Will Win

Cleveland, all kidding to one side or the other, is a fine baseball team. If it plays up to its possibilities, it can win this American League pennant by twelve games. There's only one question about the Indians: have they the stomach to take a tight situation or a strong challenge in stride, if such a thing develops, and keep fighting? If the answer is yes, Mr. Feller will pitch the first game of the World Series of 1941.

The Yankees are good, certain to win pennants again soon, but a team, based on young, unproven pitchers is never a safe bet. Boston: the dark horse. Detroit: a leaky infield and doubtful pitching, but enough power to make trouble.

The other flag, the National League's hand-stitched ensign, belongs to anybody — that is, to Brooklyn, Cincinnati or St. Louis. I think the Reds, who won by a dozen games last year, will drop back within striking distance of the others, and there you have your race. It's hard to win three pennants in a row with nothing but pitching. Brooklyn has a neat club this year, with strong reinforcements. The Cardinals abound with brilliant young material.

The crystal ball says the Cards will win if they get off to a good start. Otherwise, the crystal ball says Brooklyn. I hope to blazes the crystal ball knows what it is talking about.

Graham Sees New Punch for Prothro's Phillie's --But Not Enough To Be Much Help This Year

By DILLON GRAHAM

Sports Editor, AP Feature Service

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — The Phillies are counting on a walloper from the International league, big Nick Etten, to give them some punch this season.

Etten, a left-handed hitting and throwing first baseman, played with Baltimore last year, hit .321, and led the loop in runs batted in with 128. That's a lot of runs to bang across the plate and if he does 75 per cent as well with the Phils, Manager Doc Prothro will be satisfied.

The last-place Phils didn't have a single regular with a stick average of above .300 last year.

Prothro expects John Rizzo, Joe Marty and Dan Litwhiler to increase the offensive power of the club. Rizzo hit only .283 last year but he knocked in 72 runs. He was shuffled around between the Pirates, Reds and Phillies and wasn't in a happy frame of mind. Now he contends he's satisfied and determined to have a good year.

Litwhiler played most of 1940 with Wilkes-Barre but authored a .345 average in 36 games with the Phils. This trio has the edge right now in the competition for outfield jobs but the veteran Chuck Klein, Stan Benjamin and Walter Stewart are also contenders.

Merrill May, a first class infielder, will be at third. Bobby Bragan may get some opposition at shortstop from Larry File, a semi-pro star from Chester, Pa. Harry Marine, Jim Dillingham and Emmett Joseph Muelle will battle it out at second. May is a fair hitter but the others don't carry much of an offensive threat.

As far as experience goes, the Phillies haven't much of a pitching staff — particularly since the Dodgers bought Kirby Higbe and the draft caught Hugh Mulcahy —but Prothro has a flock of good looking youngsters and some of them may develop into creditable flingers.

Two of these kids come from Ottawa, which won the Canadian-American league championship. Paul Masterson led the loop with 19 wins and Johnny Podgajny was just one triumph behind him.

Frank Melton may turn out to be the best of the lot. He was a strike-out star with Columbus in the American Association and had a .500 average with 10 win and as many losers. Melton was the 6-foot-5 twirler the Dodgers thought they had but Commissioner Landis returned him to the Phils.

Ed Crouch, who came from the Dodgers' Montreal farm, Vito Tamulis, another former Brooklyn tosser, and Tom Hughes, who won 14 for Baltimore, should also be of help.

But all the nice things you can say about the Phillies still add up to a prediction that they'll finish last again.

What Are the Odds?

This has always been a speculative nation interested in the odds, in making them or beating them, but 1941 in this respect promises to be a record breaker. This may partly be due to the fact that life and liberty throughout the world swing more than ever before on a gambling chance.

In any event, they have smashed all past records, race for race, at Santa Anita, Hialeah, Tropical and Bowie—and the rising tide is now pointing in the direction of New York tracks and the Kentucky Derby where further records will be set.

In the last few days your wandering correspondent has been backed to the ropes in the Department of Odds.

1. What should they be on Derby leaders?
2. On the two big league races?
3. On the next Louis fight?

How It Looks

At this spot, with the fragrant odor of the bluegrass and the mint only three weeks off, the coming Kentucky Derby looks to be as wide open as a Montana plain.

There are certain to be decisive changes in the next two weeks, but at this spot such thoroughbreds as Dispose, King Cole, Bold Irishman, Our Boots, Whirlaway, Porter's Cap, Curious Coin, New World, Attention and several others have their chance.

The bigger the field, the greater chance that racing luck will play a leading role as form gets it in the middle of the throttle. But there will be many scratches, even from the list named above.

One of the toughest sectors of the Derby comes in the next three weeks—in the killing job of having your three-year-old ready and fit, minus split hoofs, housemaid's knee colic and the pip.

"I wouldn't like any entry in the race today at 6 to 1. Dispose, Bold Irishman, King Cole, Curious Coin, Our Boots, Whirlaway and possibly Porter's Cap are too closely linked in the rating. And there are too many others with a chance.

The Two Big Leagues

In the American League, Cleveland's Indians and New York Yankees must be placed on top. They should be around 3 to 1 when you consider the havoc the draft might produce. I wouldn't want either at 2 to 1 under present conditions.

Boston's Red Sox belong in third place, at around 4 to 1. In spite of their power, defensive weakness in the box and the infield cuts them down — especially weakness through the infield.

The Tigers, defending champions, are no better than 6 to 1, with the possibility that Hank Greenberg may be called to army life around mid-season, or before.

In the National League there should be a hot three-cornered race involving Cnicinnati, Brooklyn and St. Louis. I can't see any outsiders displacing this trio.

I'd rate the Reds at 2½ to 1, the Dodgers and Cardinals at 3 to 1, or thereabouts.

Too many are turning the race over to the Reds and Dodgers. If Billy Southworth can get his team away to a fair start he has his chance to upset both.

I can't see any wide separation among these three leaders. Last season, for example, the Caridnals played the best ball in the league after Southworth straightened them out and started them winging upward.

All three have uncertain spots to worry about. Derringer and Walters must have another big Red year.

About Joe Louis

Main betting on any Joe Louis start has been largely on the number of rounds required to end the disturbance.

Louis has been a big factor in discouraging gambling. No sane person has cared to bet against him and few want those 1-10 odds. The Brown Bomber has been a powerful moral force in this direction.

What should Louis be against Nova or Conn?

As Louis was two or three years ago, the odds would still be 1-10. But Louis isn't the Louis of two or three years ago.

When two such earnest but ponderous parties as Abe Simon and Tony Musto can hang around him for some 22 rounds, it must be that a certain number of cogs have gone awry or slipped their moorings.

Neither Conn nor Nova is any overwhelming tidal wave of destruction. They are merely the best we have left outside of the championship circle. But even with Louis drifting downhill, fight by fight, I wouldn't care to risk my ultimate shirt upon their chances of getting the decision after fifteen rounds.

With all the punches he has been throwing at trogiodyste jaws for many years, the Bomber's hands are beginning to soften a bit. But Louis still will be at least 1-5, possibly 1-7, when he steps into the ring against either Billy or Lou.

Conn lacks too much in weight and punching power. Nova lacks too much in ring finesse. And both happen to be stand-up fighters, the type that Louis likes best.—North American Newspaper Alliance.

Another Ballplayer With Spectacles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Catcher Jake Early of the Washington Senators may join the group of spectacle-wearing major league baseball players. Owner Clark Griffith has suggested Early try the specs while batting.

Smart Basketeers

HANOVER, N. H. (AP) — Dartmouth's basketball coach, Osborne B. Cowles, had little worries about how his proteges were getting along with their studies this past season. Three of his regulars, Gus Broberg, Charles Pearson and George Munroe, boasted Phi Beta Kappa grades and the average grade of the first team was B plus.

Local Rifle Club Receives Charter

Washington, April 10—The National Rifle Association, governing body of more than 3,700 shooting clubs and a quarter million individuals, announced through its junior division today the granting of a junior club charter to the S.A.L. Junior Rifle Club, of Cumberland, Maryland.

The new affiliate is composed of 29 charter members who will shoot under the instruction and guidance of Harry D. Bogler, who lives at 312 Paca street.

The regulations and instruction methods set up by the N. R. A. for its junior program and which are followed by the 1,500 youthful organizations all over the nation, will be adhered to by the S.A.L. Rifle Club. These rules have served to give shooting the best safety record of any scholastic sport.

The club's officers are: Robert Brooks, 714 Shriver avenue, president; James Farrell, 420 N. Mechanic street, vice-president; Albert Kerns, 327 Pearl street, executive officer; William Nelson, 434 Columbia street, secretary, and Gordon Brooks, 714 Shriver, treasurer.

A. Charles Stewart Is Endorsed for House by Three Republican Clubs

Group Demands Immediate Action by Sixth District Republican State Central Committees

A. Charles Stewart

A demand for immediate action by the Republican State Central Committee of the Sixth District was sounded last night at a joint meeting of the Cumberland, Frostburg and Midland Young Republican Clubs which unanimously endorsed A. Charles Stewart of Frostburg, as the choice of the group for the Republican nomination for the House of Representatives.

An address by Morgan C. Harris, Allegany county state's attorney, closely followed by a motion by Paul M. Fletcher supplied the spur for last night's action in the wake of an address by Stewart. Stewart declared he was available as a candidate but that he would support any man the Republicans think stand a better chance to go out and win.

Says Stewart Can Win

"In Charley Stewart we have a good, thrifty mountain business man who has been the bulwark of his party," Harris declared. "We have our man. Why wait?"

Harris then called upon the party to name its candidate and to do so at once. "There is only one candidate who can win and that man is Stewart," he said.

"But I say lets get started, the Democrats are split assunder and don't know who they want. Mrs. Byron, Pres Lane, Earle Cobey, Judge Bruce or Mike Prendergast," Harris declared.

"I admit we have no money bags to put up as a candidate but in Stewart we have a sober, sane business man who is admired for his level-headedness and common sense. We haven't any money to offer but we do have a sterling candidate who can win this election," Harris added.

Want Immediate Action

Harris's address drew an enthusiastic round of applause after which Fletcher moved that the three organizations endorse Stewart and call upon the Republican State Central Committee in the Sixth District to act and act immediately. The motion was seconded by Walter Ross, Midland, and carried unanimously.

Stewart was given a warm greeting last night when introduced by Fred Driscoll, president of the Cumberland organization.

Stewart said he had not approached any member of any state central committee for any endorsement mainly for the reason that "we shouldn't play politics at this time.

"This is our golden opportunity," Stewart said. "We are in better shape to put on a real campaign than in the last fifteen or twenty years."

Not Forcing Himself

Stewart declared that if the party saw fit to unanimously elect him as the candidate that he would run. But he made it plain that he was not forcing himself and that if the party was of the opinion that another candidate could make a stronger race he would back that candidate to the limit.

Stewart declared "you can see the handwriting on the wall these days as far as the Democratic party in this section is concerned. When a prominent Democrat gave a little dinner to feel out his chances as a possible candidate, he discovered that his guests had arrived "already primed" the speaker said.

Without mentioning any names, Stewart stated that one individual was now apparently out to get control of the representative from the Sixth district and furthermore wants a man from his own office.

Appeals for Harmony

Declaring that the Democrats are making a strong bid to secure control of all offices, Stewart declared

CUMBERLAND GROUP IS ROYALLY ENTERTAINED AT GARRETT CCC CAMP

Capt. Charles G. Brooke, Jr., commander, and members of the Meadow Mountain CCC camp in Garrett county were hosts to a group of thirty-five Cumberland visitors, headed by Miss Elsie Heipp, executive secretary of the Allegany County Welfare Board, yesterday at an inspection tour and dinner.

The visiting party included James Stevenson, clerk to the board of county commissioners; Harvey H. Weiss and Mrs. J. C. Cobey, members of the welfare board; Miss Heipp and fifteen staff members; Clarence Lippel, attorney; Brigadier Brice L. Reed Tells Why Other Communities Are Included in School Bond Bill

Added Lonaconing and Ellerslie after Talking to Simeon Green

Lonaconing and Ellerslie were included in the controversial $800,000 school bond bill at the suggestion of Simeon W. Green, president of the county commissioners, Delegate Lester B. Reed said in effect last night.

Replying to published criticisms of the bill, passed by the recently-adjourned legislature without the sanction of the Allegany county board of education and now awaiting the governor's signature, Reed explained why the bond issue was raised from $265,000 to $800,000.

The first draft of the bill called for $265,000 for construction of a new elementary-junior senior-high school at Mt. Savage, he said. This figure he said was based on statements made by Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools in a letter to the county commissioners in February, 1939, concerning the cost of a new school at Mt. Savage.

Subsequently, he went on, Kopp was quoted in the press as saying the $265,000 figure referred only to a junior-senior high school without reference to the elementary department. Although Reed said he was sure the original figure purported to estimate the full cost of an entire new school plant, he amended the bill to call for $300,000 in order to take care of the elementary department.

Drew Up Amendment

After the $300,000 measure was passed by the House of Delegates and sent to the Senate, Reed said he conferred with Green in Annapolis and asked if he favored the measure.

The legislator quoted Green as declaring that he was opposed to the measure as it stood then but would favor it if provisions were made for new schools at Lonaconing and Ellerslie.

(Green could not be reached last night for comment on this statement).

Accordingly, Reed went on, he drew up an amendment again increasing the amount called for—this time adding $500,000 for a total of $800,000.

This amendment he submitted to Senator Robert B. Kimble for introduction in the Senate, he said, denying an inference by Kopp that the $500,000 was Senator Kimble's "guess." The figure was arrived at according to Reed, in a conference between himself, Commissioner Green, Senator Kimble and Delegates J. Milton Dick and Charles M. See.

The consensus was that $500,000 was an "ample" amount for schools at Ellerslie and Lonaconing, Reed said, pointing out that any surplus was taken care of by a provision in the measure directing that it be devoted to paying the interest on the bonds or redeeming the bonds.

Long Range Program

Kopp said yesterday that plans for school expansion at Lonaconing might call for a good deal more or a good deal less than $500,000. This statement he made in explaining that the long-range program of the school board called for focal junior and senior high school plants at Westernport, Lonaconing and Frostburg.

However, the school superintendent said, school facilities at Lonaconing are now ample to take care of present needs.

With regard to Mt. Savage, Kopp said long-range plans for this community anticipated construction of an elementary-junior high school, but continuation of the present consolidation of the high school department in the new Beall high at Frostburg.

Delegate Reed was quick to jump on the phrase, "long-range program," as applied to Mt. Savage. The words are "fitting and appropriate," he said, since of the $2,331,605 spent on school construction and improvement from 1931 to 1940, not one cent was expended at Mt. Savage.

"It must be a very long-range program, indeed," he commented, "when Mt. Savage has had nothing spent on its school for sixteen or seventeen years."

Referring to a statement concerning the "seemingly near-chaotic

In this business of transforming Joe Smith, average American, into a hard-hitting soldier or sailor, there is precious little time for commanding officers to consider Joe Smith, the human being.

That is, individually. If Joe is an average recruit, no loose ends back home to worry about, he makes out pretty well. He finds out that being a soldier is a twenty-four-hour-a-day job. By the time he finishes drilling, studying and completing the thousands of things soldiers have to do, Joe's day is just about used up.

Physically, Joe's a busy man. But suppose Joe gets a letter saying his folks are having a tough time? Suppose there's a wire saying the girl he plans to marry has been taken to the hospital with pneumonia? Army men will tell you that worry and anxiety are two of the biggest handicaps they have to face in the making of a crack trooper. After all Joe Smith, the average American, is a human being.

When General George C. Marshall, United States Army Chief-of-Staff, recently commended the Red Cross for its important task in helping maintain morale in our armed forces, he was talking about something that is meaning a lot in mobilizing a defense army. Addressing the Red Cross organization at large in a coast-to-coast broadcast, the Chief-of-Staff put it this way:

"When you locate for a soldier his family with whom he has lost contact . . . or help to straighten out the great variety of tangles human beings seem unable to avoid, you are helping to maintain morale on the home front and on the military front; you are helping us in training for defense."

Today, as in 1918, the Red Cross is on the job in camps and hospitals and on the home front. To act as the connecting link between the military forces and the folks back home, the Red Cross has stationed nearly 400 sound-thinking men and women in cantonments and service hospitals—nearly three times the number of regular staff workers assigned to the Army and Navy just a year ago.

Here is how the Red Cross fits into the picture. Take Joe Smith. Joe's last two letters haven't been answered by his folks. He is a typical American; he loves his parents; so naturally he gets worried. He goes about his duties as a soldier, but of course has a burden on his mind. He thinks maybe his mother's old illness has returned. He thinks a lot of things. And it doesn't do Joe or the Army any good.

Joe goes to the Red Cross field director, who is a middle-aged man. The Red Cross man holds his job because he knows military life and he knows how to solve human problems. Joe and the field director discuss the problem over a couple of cigarettes.

Then the field director wires the Red Cross chapter in Joe's home town. The chapter sends one of its workers out to see Joe's folks. "It's just like a bridge," as one recruit put it.

If Joe needs train fare to get home, because of illness or death, the Red Cross is there to help. Or if Joe's family needs help, the chapter takes care of that. Joe knows his family is getting the right kind of help—and his family knows Joe is in good hands.

Congress recognized the importance of linking the Joe Smiths of our army and navy with their people back home when they wrote this obligation into the charter of the Red Cross. They saw to it that this obligation was to be interpreted as a flexible program, a purposeful scheme to meet the thousands of human problems men find themselves confronted with. An army placing such importance and understanding on the human side of defense is well equipped to protect the American way of life.

Modernization of Law Explained To Kiwanians by Walter C. Capper

Progress made by the legal profession in modernizing the law was described to the Kiwanis club yesterday by Walter C. Capper of Cumberland, president of the Maryland State Bar Association.

Speaking at the club's weekly luncheon-meeting at the Fort Cumberland hotel, Capper said efforts toward this end were ultimately directed at a better administration of justice.

Before his talk, the club elected its secretary, City Commissioner William J. Edwards, delegate to the annual convention of Kiwanis International at Atlanta, Ga., June 15-19. Edwards defeated Clarence Lippel in the balloting.

Would Eliminate Tricks

Steps taken in recent years toward modernizing the law were designed to "eliminate tricks, traps and technicalities in order to get at the correct solution" of any case at the bar, Capper told the Kiwanians.

Reviewing the battle for revision of court procedure, the attorney pointed out that in Maryland and some other states, court rules are made by the legislature. The legislature, consisting chiefly of laymen, "has no business" doing this, he said, referring briefly to recent remarks about the caliber of members of the Maryland General Assembly.

For ten years, the clubmen heard, an effort has been made to take the power of making these rules of procedure out of the hands of the legislature and place it in the court, where Capper said it belonged.

Committee Makes Study

In 1939, the legislature passed a bill to give this power to the court of appeals, which set up a committee of about thirty lawyers to study the matter and make recommendations to be drafted by a special "reporter" appointed by the court.

Some "drastic changes" were made in procedure, the speaker went on, and the rules drawn up were submitted to the recently-adjourned legislature, which, by failing to take any action, permitted them to stand.

Revolutionary Changes

The regulations, which become effective September 1, are "revolutionary" in some respects, Capper said, among the important changes being the granting to judges the

McKenzie To Make Fifth Address of Democracy Series

Senior Vice-Commander of Local V. F. W. Post Will Speak Today

The fifth in a series of Americanism programs entitled "Speak Up for Democracy," will be broadcast this evening at 7:30 o'clock over station WTBO.

The approaching anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson, born in Shadwell, Va., April 13, 1743, provides the theme for an address sponsored by Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars. The speaker will be William L. McKenzie, senior vice-commander of the local post.

According to V.F.W. leaders, the basic purpose of this series is to strengthen the morale of the American people and their allegiance to the principles of Americanism as defined by Thomas Jefferson and those who wrote the Constitution. Absolute faith in democracy, V.F.W. leaders point out, will provide the necessary foundation to make America's present national defense program wholly effective.

Today more than 300 radio stations, a total that represents more than one-third of all radio stations in the country, will broadcast this "Speak Up for Democracy" program in cooperation with local units of the V.F.W. In the history of the radio industry this is the largest chain of radio stations ever created by broadcasters for a non-commercial series of programs devoted exclusively to the public interest.

This series of programs, heard on the eleventh day of each month, derives its name from the book, "Speak Up for Democracy," a plan of action conceived by Edward L. Bernays, for the guidance of patriotic citizens who want to know how to recognize fifth column propaganda and how to combat the charges of incompetency being leveled at the democracies by the dictators.
